Eire Split Over De Valera Note

By JOHN E. LEE

LONDON, March 11 (INS)—Amid anaze of conflicting reports from Eire, it seemed probable today Prime Minister de Valera faces the prospect of a general election over his government's stand rejecting request of the United States that Eire oust Axis envoys.

Reports from Dublin stated a majority of the Free State people were opposed to the rejection of the American request.

In official government circles and in the official newspaper, The Irish Press, however, De Valera's policy is given whole-hearted support.

De Valera is thus apparently embroiled in the hottest controversy of his stormy career.

In London, official sources revealed today the United States note was supported the next day by a note from Great Britain, declaring the American approach was made "with the full concurrence" of His Majesty's Government.

Eire replied by sending a copy of a note dispatched to Washington, British officials disclosed.

The London Daily Sketch reported that Eire's defense council refused to give him unanimous support in rejecting American proposals at a special meeting called after the United States, on Feb. 21, asked removal of Axis representatives in Dublin. Some council members flatly informed the premier they "are prepared to support the Allies," said the Sketch.

De Valera's official newspaper The Irish Press, however, supported the premier's policy and declared "Eire's reply was the only answer possible," and that "the government's reply represents the will of the Irish people."

(Contradicting Lee's advices are those of the Associated Press in London that report the Irish people as enthusiastically approving their prime minister's rejection of the United States proposals even though they were well aware economic sanctions could be applied to force closing of the Axis listening posts in Eire.

("Qualified Dublin sources" were quoted by the Associated Press as declaring "the people in Eire are in no mood at this stage of the war to invited possible Nazi raids against the country by such a slap in Hitler's face."

(The Associated Press then amended its report of the situation by adding that "Irish censorship forbids criticism of the government's neutrality policy, however, and the absence of any comment from the Irish Times could be interpreted as silent disapproval of De Valera's step."

Four days after receiving the American note, De Valera ordered the Irish army "alerted," bridges mined, airfields taken over by the military and local defense volunteers mobilized and given small arms, according to the London Daily Express.

"De Valera interpreted the American note as an ultimatum and his reaction was swift," said the Express.

De Valera made "no attempt

MARINES TAKE AIR STRIP ON NEW BRITAIN

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ
Associated Press War Editor

Talasea air strip and village on New Britain's Willaumez peninsula have fallen to American Marines and a desperate band of outflanked and hopelessly abandoned Japs have started a suicidal assault on the Allied base at Empress Augusta on Bougainville island in the Solomons.

Today's report from headquarters indicated some of the Japanese on Bougainville had penetrated barbed wire barricades guarding the north end of the Allied lines and captured some machine-gun positions.

Enemy artillery blasted away at the two important Allied airstrips at Empress Augusta bay and damaged some planes on the ground.

But American field guns answered with a 2000-round barrage and planes hit the Japanese gun positions with a 50-ton attack.

On Los Negros island in the Admiralty group, dismounted units of the First Cavalry Division who landed Feb. 29 have advanced three and one-half miles northward.

Allied airmen gave Rabaul, New Britain, a 134-ton working-over Wednesday without drawing air opposition.

Rabaul cannot be defended, a Japanese army press correspondent said in a home broadcast, because "there are not enough planes." He described conditions in the bomb-ravaged Japanese base as "ghastly and terrible."

Allied forces driving up New Guinea's coast are now firmly entrenched on Astrolabe bay and are within 20 airline miles of Madang.

In Burma, Japanese are withdrawing from their positions in the Hukawng valley and British forces have advanced on the Arakan front toward Akyab, Allied headquarters said. China-based Allied planes attacked Hongkong yesterday.

Nazi Capital Now in Breslau

NAPLES, March 11 (AP)—Unofficial but trustworthy reports said today Allied bombers had forced the Germans to move their capital from Berlin to Breslau, 175 miles to the southeast.

While a more difficult target than Berlin, Breslau itself is not out of reach of American and British long-range bombers, lying approximately 680 miles from Britain's coast and 670 miles from Foggia airport in Italy. Thus it is within range of Flying Fortresses, Liberators, Stirlings, Lancasters, Halifaxes and Mosquitos.

FLORENCE HIT BY BOMBERS FIRST TIME

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, March 11 (AP)—Allied bombers, attacking Florence for the first time, smashed at rail targets in that city today, headquarters announced, after British warships operating in support of the Yugoslav guerrillas bombarded towns on Korcula island.

Freight yards in Florence, used by the Germans to feed troops south, were hammered by medium bomber crews specially briefed to avoid hitting the city's cultural, religious and historical landmarks, headquarters announced. This direct attack was staged because the Germans, in Florence as in Rome, "made deliberate use of our obvious reluctance" to risk damage to cultural objects.

At the same time, the Berlin radio reported that Rome was being bombed again.

British destroyers shelled targets on Korcula island Wednesday, in a sharp blow against Germans on the 28-mile-long island that nearly touches the jutting Peljesac peninsula on the Dalmatian coast.

(Berlin radio declared yesterday that Allied commandos had landed on Lissa island, west of Korcula and about 40 miles from the Dalmatian coast. Associated Press Correspondent Daniel de Luce in a delayed dispatch from Bari, quoted officers of Marshal Tito as saying the Nazis now had elements of 20 divisions in Yugoslavia.)

In the shelling of Korcula, headquarters said, "in spite of accurate fire from enemy shore batteries our ships sustained neither casualties nor damage."

The 45th Infantry Division has been in almost constant action on the Anzio beachhead since Jan. 24, it was officially announced today.

The division which fought across Sicily and up the Italian peninsula originally was composed of men from Oklahoma, Colorado and New Mexico, but today the unit has men from most of the 48 states. It was the 45th which bore the brunt of the fighting when the Germans made their second great effort to drive the Allied forced off the beachhead Feb. 16.

3 Red Armies Shatter Nazi Lines

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press War Editor

Three massive Russian offensives were ripping and crumbling the entire German stand in south Russia.

Co-ordinated offensives by the three Soviet armies were striking forward in a huge drive to throw the Nazis from the southern Ukraine. The Germans were fighting heavily to hold their lines.

Marshal Konev threw his second Ukrainian army into the third and latest assault, breaking into Nazi defenses on a 109-mile front southwest of Cherkasy.

Moscow declared 20,000 Germans had been killed, 2500 captured and 300 towns and communities liberated in a five-day push that routed 14 enemy divisions. Uman, within 30 miles of the Bug river, was a main prize.

Marshal Zhukov meanwhile was deepening his push into old Poland, fighting in the streets of Tarnopol, which the Germans claimed they had retaken. The third Ukrainian army was driving to the southwest upon Kerson and Nikolaev on the Black Sea.

STALIN'S OFFER TO BADOGLIO NEWS TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—A State Department spokesman said today word of Marshal Stalin's offer to Marshal Pietro Badoglio to exchange ambassadors as an expression of Russia's recognition with the present Italian regime "came without any advance knowledge whatsoever."

Official comment was being withheld pending confirmation, the spokesman said. It was made clear the meaning of the offer was not understood in official Washington.

They Love It!

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, March 11 (AP)—Lieut.-Gen. Clark, just returned from an inspection trip to the Fifth Army's beachhead, declared today "things are in good shape up there; we have declared open season on the Boche and have killed many thousands of them." "Our men love it," he said.

Yanks Rip Muenster And Pas-de-Calais

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—American Flying Fortresses hit Muenster in western Germany today while Liberator bombers were loosing hard blows at German military installations in the Pas-de-Calais region of the French coast, headquarters announced.

The two-pronged American daylight attack was made through substratosphere snowstorm without the loss of a single bomber, but four fighters were lost during the day's operations.

The new blows followed up an RAF Lancaster night precision assault on four factories in France.

Other forces of American Thunderbelt fighters also contributed to the daylight sweeps by strafing airdromes, gun positions and other German military targets in occupied territory.

The new American assaults on western Germany and the French coast where Prime Minister Churchill said the Germans are readying rockets and robot planes were a resumption of their marathon attacks following a one-day lull.

Targets of the night-riding RAF Lancasters were airplane factories at Chateauroux, 150 miles south of Paris and Clermont-Ferrand, 100 miles south of Chateauroux.

Ossun, another of the night targets, lies only five miles from Tarbes, 40 miles from the Spanish border and representing a roundtrip of more than 1000 miles.

Factories also were hit at Laricamarie, near Saint Etienne, 75 miles south of Vichy.

Finn Rulers Forego Holiday

STOCKHOLM, March 11 (AP)—Several prominent members of the Finnish government are remaining in Helsinki for the week-end rather than taking their usual holiday in the country, it was learned today leading some observers to believe a development in the Finnish peace crisis was imminent.

Science Tests Murder Clues

A stained coat, gloves and a pair of rubber-soled shoes, taken from the home of a 60-year-old handyman, were tested by police chemists today for traces of blood which might serve as clues in the bludgeon and strangulation murder of Mrs. Alice Degnan Sheridan in Charlestown.

Simultaneously, Dr. Joseph Walker, state police chemist, made tests on substances found in the Saugus tourist cabin where Miss Helen Power, 39, of Charlestown, and James T. McGuinness, 45, of Somerville, died in a mysterious manner.

Dr. Laurence J. Cusick of Nahant, medical examiner in the area, said McGuinness and Miss Power died "partly from suffocation" by steam which poured out of a radiator from which the valve had been removed.

Mrs. Alice D. Sheridan

In addition, both victims were badly scalded. Refusing to eliminate the possibility of murder in the couples' death, Dr. Cusick requested the state police chemist to analyze the yellow-white contents of a liquor bottle picked up in the littered room where they met death.

LOOKS FOR POISON

Meanwhile, Dr. Alan R. Moritz of Harvard Medical School, state pathologist, took vital organs of the man and woman to his laboratory to make tests for traces of poison or some drug which conceivably could have been inserted in liquor that they drank.

Still seeking some connection between the couple's deaths and the slaying of Mrs. Sheridan, police sought substantiation for a theory that the trio knew each other well and they had joined in a drinking party last Monday.

It was on Monday that John J. McDonough, 54, of Harvard st., Charlestown, a baker who first claimed to be Mrs. Sheridan's husband, said he last saw her alive.

Her nude and battered body was found jammed under a board fence beside the Edgeworth st., Charlestown, house where Mrs. Catherine McGinley, 85, a wealthy recluse, was tortured to death in November of 1942.

The 60-year-old handyman now in custody was picked up for questioning at the time of the McGinley murder, but released.

REPORTS CONFLICT

Capt. Louis DiSessa of the City sq. station said the handyman has given conflicting reports as to his movements last Tuesday, the day on which Suffolk Medical Examiner William J. Brickley states Mrs. Sheridan may have been slain.

Residents of the Bunker Hill section were requested by Capt. DiSessa to join in a fine-toothcomb search being made by police for a small brown hat believed to have been worn by Mrs. Sheridan.

Wife Injured, May Take Baby

Surgeons at the Lynn Hospital today had preparations completed for an emergency operation, in case it seemed necessary, on Mrs. Christine Garnier, 35, of Summer st., Lynn, an expectant mother who suffered critical injuries in a fall from her back piazza.

MOVIES AHEAD—Lucy Cochrane, Boston post-deb who quit the social whirl for a stage career, is reported about to sign a movie contract, Louella Parsons reveals today. Miss Cochrane made her debut recently in "Ziegfeld Follies."

The victim is in the hospital maternity ward, where her child's birth is expected momentarily. Doctors said the lives of mother and unborn baby alike are in danger owing to the spine fracture, broken arm and severe cuts which she suffered.

Mrs. Garnier plunged several feet when the piazza railing broke as she leaned on it. The tiny daughter of a neighbor, Mrs. William Brozonas, witnessed the accident and Mrs. Brozonas called the police.

Patrolmen John Tansey and John Casey were held at bay for more than 15 minutes, however, by Mrs. Garnier's loyal but terrified pet mongrel dog, "Skippy." The animal bared its teeth and stood guard over its stricken mistress until calmed by a neighbor.

The officers then rushed the expectant mother to the hospital and notified her husband, Michael, a clerk at the River Works of the General Electric Co., of the accident.

Two other sons of the couple, Michael, 14, and Robert 12, students at Breed Junior High School, were taken in by Mrs. Brozonas.

Yanks Abroad Seething Over Dry Era Threat

By AUSTEN LAKE

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND—This is a digest of some of the basic matters this writer has discovered during his hoboing through the U. S. combat centers, problems that frame the lives of overseas soldiers and will, unquestionably, affect his postwar thought and actions.

PROHIBITION—The U. S. soldier who has been over here a year or more isn't bothered about such social questions as inflation, although it affects his cash allotments that he sends home.

He doesn't fret about ballooning taxes, although he and his children's children must pay the enormous bills. He doesn't worry about Washington's top-heavy bureaucracy, or rising costs, or factional politics, or black markets.

In a general, detached way he is sore at strikers in war industry, and detests John L. Lewis as the head boogieman. But what does send him into a transport of excited cussing is the notion that our militant "white ribboners," the die-hard prohibitionists, are trying to impose another Volstead act during his absence.

To his mind that is a real and personal menace, even though he himself may be a teetotaler, which by force of circumstance and the scarcity of liquor stocks in England, he is the next thing to being willy nilly.

I might add that the British pub keepers are reaping a rich harvest by selling diluted and meager drams to our cash-careless men—when it is available at any price.

Food Situation

FOOD—Our AEF man-at-arms does not eat fancy, but he eats solid. The worst that anyone can say about oversea chow is that the basic diet of spam, beans, spuds and stew grows tiresome after long stretches.

And the best that one can say is that no soldier goes hungry, and that the majority have added weight.

Every mess in the training area gets the same basic ration, although not every mess gives its men the same grub.

The explanation to this paradox

3 BANDITS GRAB $1000 IN SOUTH BOSTON

Two holdup men, both brandishing revolvers, staged a $1000 payroll robbery just before noon today at the South Boston Iron & Metal Co. office, 1-A Ellery st., South Boston, after terrifying six employes.

The gunmen escaped in a convertible coupe driven by a third man. The car was discovered a short while later, abandoned near the Savin Hill elevated station.

Police believe the trio had a second escape car parked there.

The money was in an open safe and was to be used in paying off employes today. One of the bandits snatched it while his companion forced six office workers to stand back with hands lifted.

Moon Bridal

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 11 (AP)—By the light of the moon and passing headlights, a sailor and his sweetheart were married on the shoulder of a main highway near here last night.

Harry B. Thompson, 21, of Everett, Mass., had to report back to duty in a hurry. He and Daisy Washington, 21, Jamaica Plain, Mass., got their license in Los Angeles County and went to adjacent Ventura County for the ceremony. There they learned the license was good only in Los Angeles County.

So back they rushed to a spot just 25 feet on the Los Angeles County side and were married by a justice of the peace.

Bricker in N. E.; Sees Victory in Fall for G.O.P.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, one of the nation's leading Republican presidential possibilities, said today at Worcester that he believes a Republican will be elected President this fall.

Arriving in Worcester en route to Providence, and then due for a trip to Boston and a visit with Gov. Saltonstall, the Ohio chief executive was accompanied by Mrs. Bricker and several members of an official party.

The United States, he said at Worcester, should take every action possible to see that the lives of American soldiers and sailors are fully protected—a comment made in connection with the situation in Ireland.

EIRE DEPENDS ON ALLIES

Gov. Bricker emphasized that all he knew of the situation in Eire was what he had read in newspaper dispatches and that he did not understand how serious the situation was. But he added:

"I think that situation can be taken care of through diplomatic negotiations. I doubt if economic sanctions will be necessary to settle it.

"After all, however, Eire's security depends upon the victory of the Allies."

Greeting Gov. and Mrs. Bricker, the latter smartly clad in a mink coat, were leaders of the Republican party in Rhode Island who were to be the Brickers' hosts until late evening.

They included Francis Taylor of Newport, secretary-treasurer of the Rhode Island State Republican Committee; State Sen. George D. Greenhalgh of Gloucester, R. I., chairman of the State Committee, and Harry Sandager of Cranston, member of the Republican National Committee.

This group accompanied the Bricker party to Providence by motor.

At noon, the Governor was a luncheon guest of Sec. Taylor at his Seekonk home, while Mrs. Bricker was taken to the Plantation Club in Providence, where she was a luncheon guest of Mrs. Paul FitzSimmons of Newport, mother of ex-Gov. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island, who now is away in the service.

Asked concerning the growing movement to allow 18-year-olders to vote, Gov. Bricker said:

"In our state it would take a constitutional amendment to change the voting age. Although we are going to have a special session soon, I don't contemplate opening up this subject at this time. There is no movement in Ohio yet to give 18-year-olds the vote.

"While it would take only the action of one legislature to do it we could not do it in time to do any good. I believe the matter should be taken up at a regular session, as it is a very debatable matter and ought to be carefully considered."

Returning to the Irish question, Bricker declared:

"The question is whether or not information about Allied preparations for invasioin is going back to the enemy. The conduct of the war must not be imperilled whatever action is necessary."

Told that President Roosevelt had approved a joint Army-Navy policy agreement which would permit Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Lieut.-Comdr. Harold E. Stassen and other members of the armed forces be become candidates for elective office, the Ohio governor replied:

"I believe that anyone should be available for nomination whether they be Democrat or Republican."

Explaining that he was "just out viewing the Republican party," Bricker stated that he did not "count my chickens before they are hatched."

"But I believe that a Republican will be elected President of the United States this fall," he said.

"I am more interested," he declared, "in stopping the trend toward absolutism, reversing the centralization of power and defeating the philosophy of the New Deal than I am in being President of the United States myself.

"I think it is time to stop the President's concentration of power. I think it was Madison who said that we did not elect a man to bring about despotism.

"I think a change in the government will promote the war effort and will prove to the people of other lands that the people of this country must be taken into consideration."

3 Accused Tars On Way to Hub

Boston police today were enroute from Philadelphia with three sailors alleged to have beaten up Dr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Gillespie, Back Bay, who feted the sailors on the evening of Feb. 8 in a Chinatown restaurant.

Special Officers John McNicholas, Joseph Curran and Joseph O'Donnell of the Back Bay Station received the sailors from the Commandant of the 4th Naval District in Philadelphia, after they had returned from a voyage to an undisclosed port.

Dr. and Mrs. Gillespie told police the trio not only beat up the doctor and his wife, but attempted a criminal assault on Mrs. Gillespie, and then stole their car.

Cult Will Grow, Warn Accused Members

SALT LAKE CITY, March 11 (AP)—Two women members of the "Fundamentalist" cult, held on State charges of conspiring with 32 others to practise or advocate plural marriages, contended today their followers would increase despite Federal-State government efforts to stamp out polygamy.

"You may think that plural marriages can be stamped out," Mrs. Rhea A. Kunz said in an interview in the Salt Lake Telegram, "but it cannot because it is right.

"Our purpose and fundamental belief in its practice is to have a clean and intellectual as well as spiritual-minded progney, and also to provide worthy husbands for good women since, regardless of wars and pestilence, there has always been a surplus of worthy women.

"Women of plural marriage are fortunate in that they have the companionship and love of other women bound by a common tie in both the joys and hardships of life."

Views of the 37-year-old mother of eight children were seconded by Mrs. Mary Beth Barlow Cleveland, 17-year-old mother of two.

POLICE TAKE BABY'S DEATH CASE TO COURT

Police of the City sq. station today appeared in Charlestown district court to present evidence, for any action which the court might deem advisable, in the case of Mrs. Germaine Gagnon, 25, of Corey st., Charlestown, who claimed she found her 18-months-old son, Leo, dead in his crib.

The police move was prompted by Medical Examiner William J. Brickley's report that the infant died of brain and scalp contusions and a "sub-dural" or brain hemorrhage "received in an unknown manner."

At the same time, police and military authorities are trying to reach the dead baby's father, Roland J. Gagnon, a soldier stationed in Texas, to inform him of the tragedy. The Gagnons have another child, Roland, Jr., 4.

After hearing the mother's story, police questioned Dr. Joseph Murphy of High st., Charlestown, who was quoted as having said he treated the baby a month ago for bruises about the body.

Capt.. Louis DiSessa of the Charlestown police said Mrs. Gagnon told him she burned a blanket which had been used in the baby's crib. Portions of bed clothing and a mattress were found in an incinerator, Capt. DiSessa reported. On his order, Mrs. Gagnon was removed to the Psychopathic Hospital for temporary observation.

Fired Shipyard Worker Admits 20 Burglaries

John E. White, 19, of Warren ave., Brockton, was dismissed on Jan. 15 from Bethlehem-Hingham shipyard for sleeping on his night-shift job. Since that night, John has been very wide-awake, according to police of six South Shore communities who have been pursuing him, sometimes in wild 80-mile-an-hour auto chases, to talk with him about a series of auto thefts and gasoline station breaks.

Today was the first time police have seen John walking and he was arrested in Main st., Brockton, and charged with breaking and entering two filling stations in that city.

After long questioning by Lieut. Thomas Fitzpatrick and Inspector John Walsh the youth was said to have admitted 20 breaks in Randolph, Weymouth, Braintree, Abington, Rockland and Brockton.

White was quoted by police as saying he was after gasoline ration coupons to get fuel for his joy-riding. They said not more than $25 in cash was taken in all the burglaries.

Police said White also admitted stealing several cars and using them for joy-rides, often accompanied by teen-aged girls unaware the car was not White's.

White, according to police, admitted taking a car in Hingham on Jan. 15 and driving it 2000 miles before abandoning it in Brockton Feb. 25.

At the time of his arrest White was free in $500 bond from Brockton court where he was arraigned Monday for auto theft.

13 Rescued in Five Greater Boston Fires

Thirteen persons were rescued and scores were driven from their homes in five Greater Boston fires today which caused total damage estimated at more than $45,000.

The most serious fire destroyed four business places in Moody st., Waltham, in the heart of the business section. Fire Chief Bertram M. Neal, who ordered three alarms sounded, said the loss was estimated at $30,000.

Patrolmen Leo Higgins and Charles Feeley discovered the fire and roused occupants of apartments over the stores. They led 10 persons, including an 80-year-old man and his wife, to safety.

MALDEN FIRE

Business establishments ruined were the Manco Market, Waltham Shoe Hospital, Royal Cafe, and a pet shop where 50 Hartz Mountain canaries were burned to death.

In Malden, a two-alarm blaze swept the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Ernest Murray in Hawthorne st., causing $2500 damage.

Murray and his wife were trapped on the third floor of the frame dwelling and firemen led them to safety through flame and smoke-filled hallways.

Two roomers, Mrs. Louis Eisenzimmer and Charles Brooks, were carried down ladders from a second floor porch roof. William Grester, another roomer, escaped unaided.

Deputy Fire Chief Lorin A. Keddie said the fire started from spontaneous combustion in a rubbish pile in the basement.

A basement fire in a five-story tenement block in Prince st., North End, drove more than a score to the street and caused $500 damage. Officials said a carelessly tossed cigarette caused the blaze.

Fire in the fourth floor of a Friend st., North End, building occupied by the Northern Reed & Rattan Co., resulted in $500 damage to stock and equipment.

A general alarm fire of undetermined origin swept Belcher Elementary School in Randolph, causing $12,000 damage before it was extinguished after a seven-hour fight by firemen from Randolph and surrounding towns.

LANGAN CHILD SHUNNED HER, MOTHER SAYS

WASHINGTON, March 11— Sobbing so emotionally court had to be recessed before she could continue her story, Joan Manners, British-born actress, placed in the records of her custody suit for the 10-year-old daughter Joan Langan, today, an admission that the child had told her: "You can't make me love you no matter what you do."

Earlier, she emphatically reiterated her denials that John Langan, former movie dialogue director, was her child's father.

"Mr. Langan has never had relations with me at any time," she stated bluntly.

Pathetically, she told a story of meeting her child a few months ago in front of the Langan home in Bethesda, Md., before a Maryland court awarded her Joan's custody.

"I got out of the car when I saw Joannie playing on the lawn. I knelt down beside her and said: 'Joan, you are Joan, aren't you?'"

Here the actress almost broke down, but with tears welling in her eyes, she continued:

"Joan smiled. It was a little half-smile, and she said, 'Yes.' Then I asked her if she recognized me, and she shook her head, 'no.'

"'Joan, I'm your mother,'" Miss Manners said she told the child. Here, unable to control her tears longer, the actress broke down and court was recessed for five minutes. But even after a rest, she continued her story brokenly.

F. D. Says Lend-Lease In 3 Years Dooms Axis

By ROBERT G. NIXON

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—President Roosevelt told Congress today United States Lend-Lease aid to its Allies, now totalling nearly twenty billion dollars, has set the stage for the coming overwhelming Anglo-American invasion of western Europe and the final crushing of Germany's waning military might.

In a minutely detailed report the Chief Executive revealed American planes, tanks, guns and other weapons delivered under lend-lease to Great Britain and Russia have turned the tide from the specter of defeat three years ago to the certainty of Allied victory.

The report, a summary of three years of lend-lease operations, was sent to Congress on this, the third anniversary of passage of the lend-lease act.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that a tremendous upswing in shipments of munitions and weapons to Britain in the past few months has converted the British isles into a great Allied base of operations "preparing the way for the coming invasion" of Nazi-held western Europe.

He also revealed that huge shipments of war supplies to Russia have been a key factor in enabling the Red armies to sustain offensives that swept the Hitlerite armies out of the greater part of the Soviet.

In dollars, lend-lease aid for the three years through 1943 totalled $19,936,000,000. For 1943 lend-lease reached $11,7333,000,000 compared with $7,009,000,000 in 1942 and $1,244,000,000 in 1941.

Of this, the United Kingdom received $6,595,000,000 and Russia $4,241,000,000, Africa and the Middle East $2,374,000,000 and China, India Australia and New Zealand $1,780,000,000.

But the real results of lend-lease were demonstrated in the report in the number of planes, tanks, guns and other weapons, of food for the armies and civilian populations of Britain and Russia, and raw materials needed for building more weapons of war.

Except for more up-to-date figures and a more complete breakdown on help given China and India, the report followed the pattern of 13 others.

Russia and China need all they can produce, plus what we have sent them, it was revealed.

The report did not reveal how much lend-lease help actually had reached China.

Lend-lease supplies "transferred" to China included $146,545,000 of munitions, $28,952,000 of industrial items, and $79,000 of farm products. Services, figured at $25,419,000, raised the total aid to $200,995,000 as of Jan. 1. In addition, goods valued at $191,731,000 have been consigned to American forces in the India-China theater for transfer to China.

Mr. Roosevelt reported that of the 150,000 airplanes produced in American factories since March 1, 1941, this country has sent 21,000 to its Allies. Russia alone received 7800 fighting planes, 5000 last year.

An additional 7000 planes, paid for in cash, went to the United Kingdom. Four thousand planes were sent to Allied forces in the Pacific and Far Eastern theaters.

"Planes, bombs, tanks, ships, guns and other munitions accounted for 54 per cent of the total" of all lend-lease, the report stated.

"Industrial materials and products transferred to our Allies to aid their production of planes, ammunition and other vital war supplies amounted to $4,146,000,000 to the end of 1943. All of these materials and products are used for direct war purposes."

Food and agricultural products amounted to $2,534,000,000.

"Lend-Lease food shipments have supplied a vital 10 per cent of Britain's food supply and enabled the Soviet Union to maintain the Red army's rations," the report said.

Recreation to Fight Delinquency Urged

Mayor Tobin today received a report from the Boston Committee on Social Protection urging the organization of a comprehensive recreation program for youths of Boston as a means of preventing and combating juvenile delinquency.

Such a program, the committee said, should be operated by private agencies "until such time as the Boston City Council accepts the 1943 legislative act establishing an unpaid board of recreation in Boston."

The report stated there is a vital need for such an undertaking to cope with "wartime distractions affecting the young."

MUST COVER NEEDS

It recommended that "the Boston Council of Social Agencies shall organize a recreation committee which shall make plans assuring for the children of Boston during the war years, recreation covering their needs in all parts of the city and during all seasons of the year."

Increased funds should be made available to community agencies, the committee added, "for this primary preventive approach."

Although noting an increase in juvenile delinquency, the committee strongly defended Boston's young girls as a whole, and charged they have been "a continual target for lurid publicity."

After a year's study on the delinquency problem, the committee said too much stress had been placed on the misbehavior of a small number of girls, victims of war hysteria. Thousands of young girls who are helping the war effort in homes, schools and churches are harmed by these reports, the committee pointed out.

INCREASES 50 PER CENT

The number of girls between 7 and 17 taken into custody last year in the police division covering Boston Common, Scollay sq., the West End and North Station areas, and prosecuted in juvenile court, increased 50 per cent over 1942, the committee reported. The number of boys taken to juvenile court from the same district was up 60 per cent over the previous year.

Pucheu Guilty, Faces Death

ALGIERS, March 11 (AP)—Pierre Pucheu, former Vichy interior minister, today was convicted of treason and condemned to death by a special military tribunal after the defendant in a last passionate declaration of innocence, had cried out "this is not a court of justice . . . it's a political coup" and concluded, "whatever happens, long live France."

The court, after one hour of deliberation, convicted Pucheu of treason, malfeasance in office and collaboration with the enemy. He was found innocent of illegal arrests and conspiracy to overthrow the Third Republic.

Lucky Bullet Lost, Calls for Another

His wife gave him as a lucky piece, a .30 caliber bullet with his name engraved on it. Today Mrs. Lydiard was shopping for another bullet. Her husband has lost his charm piece.

Tom Girdler reports to the American people

THE makers of aircraft of this country are meeting the vast needs of our Government for thousands upon thousands of planes in a mighty effort which will stand long as a historic achievement of industry.

As the world's largest producer of planes, Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation is doing its share in this great war job. The annual report to stockholders describes what the company is doing, and there are many facts in that report of interest to the general public. Here are some of them:

The job we are doing

From the production lines of Consolidated Vultee's plants, eight types of planes ranging from Liberator bombers to trainers and "Flying Jeeps" flow in ever-increasing numbers.

LIBERATOR . . . 4-engine bomber
The Liberator has blasted a name for itself all around the world.

In 1942, we delivered 53,000,000 pounds of airplanes, including spare parts. In 1943, we multiplied this almost two and a half times — a total of 126,000,000 pounds.

How we did it

This record is a reflection of steadily increasing operating efficiency. Efficiency in building heavy bombers at the San Diego Division has been rated first in the nation by the War Production Board. The Nashville plant was rated first among builders of single-engine bombers, while the Vultee Field and Stinson divisions consistently have led the field in building basic and advanced trainers.

LIBERATOR EXPRESS . . . transport
The cargo version of the Liberator can carry a ten-ton pay load.

Saving Manpower

Increased efficiency has helped meet the manpower shortage. Production has been steadily expanded with declining manpower requirements for each plane.

CORONADO . . . patrol bomber
The Coronado is the largest Consolidated Vultee plane in Navy service.

For example, with the same direct labor required to build one four-engine Liberator three years ago, today we build fourteen. In December 1941, at the San Diego Division the output per employee was only 47 pounds; during December 1943, the figure was 151 pounds per employee — the highest output per man-day in the heavy-bomber field, according to the War Production Board.

CATALINA . . . patrol bomber
Long used by the Navy, the Catalina refuses to grow old, as the enemy will testify.

Saving the taxpayer's dollar

Increasing output has resulted in lower unit cost. Last year Consolidated Vultee saved the government $250,000,000 with new operating economies and efficient use of manpower.

During the year, close to 50,000 time-saving proposals were submitted by employees. The adoption of many of these employees' suggestions resulted in savings of man-hours equivalent to 10,000 persons working 48 hours a week for a full year.

How 7000 suppliers helped

The responsibilities of Consolidated Vultee in meeting schedules and turning out vastly increased production were shared with some 7000 material suppliers located in 42 states. Their continued cooperation has been of the greatest benefit.

VALIANT . . . basic trainer

Eyes to the future

Consolidated's vast industrial organization is concentrating upon the job of producing and developing planes for the war.

VENGEANCE . . . dive bomber
Newly perfected dive brakes on the Vengeance give pilots complete bombing accuracy.

Under construction is a new military transport, similar to the Liberator Express but with a larger fuselage to provide space for more efficient cargo and troop transportation. A new four-engine heavy bomber of advanced design is also being developed.

Work continues on a giant transport plane able to make non-stop trips to Europe and return. It is large enough to accommodate 400 passengers.

RELIANT . . . navigational trainer

The Stout Research Division at Dearborn, Michigan, under the direction of William B. Stout, is engaged in several experimental projects for military as well as commercial application. Research and development are being carried on for airplanes for private use, not only in the form of conventional planes, but also in various advanced forms, such as a flying automobile, a roadable airplane, and a helicopter.

SENTINEL . . . "Flying Jeep"
They are the "eyes upstairs" — help make American artillery the world's deadliest.

Our pledge to you

We know that the war is not yet won. We know that ultimate success on the fighting front requires continued all-out production on America's industrial front. There will be no let-down at Consolidated Vultee until Victory is won!

'G-I Bill of Rights' Is Backed by FHA, Agriculture Dep't

By FRANK REILLY
Boston American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 11—The "G-I bill of rights," backed by the combined forces of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, today was given the endorsement of the Department of Agriculture and Federal Housing Administration in addition to the War and Navy Departments.

Sec. of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, appearing before the Senate sub - committee on veterans' legislation, declared there is a "real need" for legislation providing loans to aid returning veterans in purchasing farms.

CAREFUL GUIDANCE

There is need also, he said, for careful guidance for the thousands of young men who will seek government loans to return to the soil. Under the terms of the omnibus bill, he pointed out, such guidance can be provided by education, by committees of farmers and by the county farm agency in each community.

Speaking for the FHA, which is charged under the bill with aiding veterans to obtain loans for the purchase of homes, farms and small business, was B. C. Bovard, general counsel, who endorsed the bill's provisions.

Army and Navy spokesmen informed the committee they had withdrawn all objections to the bill and gave it their blessing.

APPROVE PROVISION

Col. William E. Carpenter of the War Department general staff approved provisions which permit accredited representatives of veterans' organizations to enter Army and Navy hospitals to aid men who are about to be discharged and advise them of their rights.

He withdrew, as well, opposition to provisions calling for a board of review in the Army and Navy to look over all cases of discharge or dismissal except those following sentence of a court marshal.

Likewise, the Army and Navy cancelled objections to terms of the bill forbidding any officer to require any statement from a man about to be discharged which is against the interest of that man.

A similar green light was given the "bill of rights" by other spokesmen for the armed services in a separate hearing before Cong. John E. Rankin's House committee on veterans' legislation.

ROUGH GOING OVER

In this session, Col. James E. Morrisett, assistant judge advocate-general, got a rough going over at the hands of the veteran Mississippi congressman. Rankin said that a statement of physical condition which the Army makes a man sign before receiving his discharge was a "death warrant."

Love or Duty Calls Yugo King

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—Yugoslavia's King Peter, it was officially announced, reached England today and Britain speculated as to whether Prime Minister Churchill or Dan Cupid was responsible for his coming.

His appearance in London strengthened indications of a mounting British determination to bring about unity among Yugoslav factions—probably under the fighting banners of Marshal Tito with King Peter remaining head of the government.

However, there's another angle —Princess Alexandra of Greece, Peter's fiancee, is also in London.

MOSCOW, March 11 (AP)—Stanojf Simic, Yugoslav minister to the Soviet Union, and Lieut.-Col. Meodrag Lozic, Yugoslav military attache here, have renounced King Peter's government and placed themselves at the disposal of Marshal Tito, it was disclosed today in a letter published in Pravda.

Simic and Lozic accused the royalist government of obstructing patriotic Yugoslavs who desired to fight for liberation of the country.

British Miners Confer on Strike

LONDON, March 11 (INS)—Some 250 delegates from South Wales miners' lodges met today in Cardiff to decide whether to end a strike of 100,000 miners which their executive committee warned was periling the entire Allied invasion plan.

A number of Welsh members of Parliament were expected to be present at the meeting, which is to decide whether to accept important concessions reportedly made by the government.

7 Firms to Appeal WLB Vacation Ruling

PROVIDENCE, March 11 (AP)—Seven Rhode Island and two Connecticut finishing companies will appeal a New England War Labor Board decision awarding two weeks' vacation with pay to employes with five years or more of service, according to Eugene A. Kingman, counsel for the concerns. Those with less than five years' service would get one week's vacation.

Honored After Death

BROCKTON, March 11—The Purple Heart has been awarded posthumously to Air Force Sergt. Russell E. Dahlen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmar Dahlen of E. Nilsson st. He was killed in action last Nov. 5 over Germany.

2 New Haven Girls In Love Quadrangle

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 11 (AP)—How three-continent courtship via V-mail resulted in romance for two New Haven girls in a wartime love quadrangle was told today by Miss Ruth Emerson.

The ocean-spanning romance began last year, when Miss Emerson met Aviation Cadet Edward Baker of Toledo, O., who came here to study at the Army Air Forces Training Command School at Yale.

Baker was commissioned a second lieutenant and shipped to England.

Meanwhile, Miss Emercon met Miss Barbara Adams and subsequently learned the latter also had a boy-friend overseas, in Africa, Lieut. Jim Larabee of Denver, graduate from the AAFTC school at Yale. The two girls decided to take an apartment together.

A few months later they bet each other a steak dinner as to which of them would receive an engagement ring first.

The other morning, their postman rang once—with two rings, the engagement ring for each of them. Baker's from England, Larabee's from Italy. Both officers apparently had waited to be promoted to first lieutenant before shopping for the bands.

Congress is Warned On Aims of Russia

By DAVID SENTNER
Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, March 11—Soviet Russia, behind the Communist leadership of Joseph Stalin, intends to become the master of Europe. Russia, unlike England, does not look upon the war as merely a job to be finished, but looks beyond it "with great intensity of vision" at the prospect of securing abroad all she has coveted throughout her history.

"She knows what she wants and she means to get it, both in the war and after."

This warning against the rise of a new dominating power on the European continent threatening the survival of the British Empire is sounded in an editorial published in a recent issue of "Nineteenth Century and After."

The concluding portion of the article, entitled "Constants in Russian Foreign Policy," written by F. A. Voigt, noted editor of the publication, was introduced into today's Congressional Record by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler (D.) of Montana.

Stalin has changed his policy so many times, the article states, and has committed so many inconsistencies that he is credited with being a complete opportunist.

"But it will be found, upon examination, that the changes and inconsistences are often more apparent than real, and that he is more faithful to the teachings of Marx and Lenin than is generally supposed, especially in the realm of foreign affairs," Voigt adds.

The editorial scoffs at the so-called dissolution by Stalin of the Comintern, dedicated to world revolution.

Ely Supporters Tighten Fences

Anti-fourth term Democrats today scheduled a series of important week-end conferences to complete the reorganization of the delegate slates in seven Congressional districts pledged to former Gov. Joseph B. Ely.

In withdrawing names of 15 delegates and 16 alternates from the Ely states, Charles H. McGlue of the Ely-for-President committee told Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook that the vacancies will be filled by substitutions to be filed by next Tuesdays' deadline.

The Democratic presidential primaries ballot on April 25 will see the names of School Committeeman Michael J. Ward of Allston, and Col. David J. Brickley of West Roxbury, both members of the unpledged group of Democratic state committee delegates, also appearing on the pledged-to-Ely slate.

Eisenhower Sounds Warning

SANDHURST, Kent, England, March 11 (INS)—A blunt warning that the Axis must be crushed in a gruelling ground battle before victory can be won was delivered today by Gen. Eisenhower in a speech to cadets at historic Sandhurst Military Academy — the West Point of Great Britain.

Apparently sounding the death knell to any remaining hopes air power alone can win the war unaided, the supreme commander of Allied invasion forces of western Europe told the cadets that "the ground battle must be won before the enemy can be crushed."

U. S. REJECTS EIRE'S OFFER TO BUY SHIPS

By KINGSBURY SMITH

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—Authoritative sources revealed today the United States has turned down a request by Eire for permission to purchase two cargo vessels in this country.

This fact became known following official disclosure that Eire had rejected the American request that Dublin sever diplomatic relations with the Axis powers in order to put an end to German and Japanese espionage activities in southern Ireland.

Dublin's request for the opportunity to purchase the two cargo vessels actually was refused shortly before Eire's rejection of the American demand for the removal of the Axis diplomatic and consular missions in Ireland.

However, there is good reason to believe if the Irish government had been willing to meet the American request for a break with the Axis, Washington would have been disposed to reconsider the question of letting Eire have the vessels.

Eire wanted the vessels to replace two lost at sea. One was torpedoed by a U-boat. The other disappeared, presumed to have been torpedoed.

Chimney sparks were blamed today for the $1000 fire in the Medford Infirmary, Winthrop st., West Medford, during which two aged women patients were carried to safety from the third floor.

One of the rescued women later presided at her 98th birthday party tendered by 25 other residents. The other woman, 89, was one of the guests.

to hide his bitterness" during interviews with U. S. Minister David Gray, the paper reported. According to the Express' diplomatic correspondent, he "argued acidly at every interview" and spoke of "military threats" and "economic pressure."

"He described himself as a 'Christian fatalist' and said a man can die only once," the paper reported.

De Valera, the Express continued, insisted that the American proposal was "an ultimatum which would drive a horse and cart through his neutrality."

GET INVASION PLANS

British sources meanwhile expressed concern over Eire's rejection of the American request and pointed out that the problem is all the more urgent because of Allied preparations for the invasion of west Europe.

Through the Nazi and Japanese representatives in Dublin and an espionage network in Eire, these sources declared, the Germans must be redoubling their efforts to obtain vital information regarding those preparations.

The London Daily Mail stated editorially that "enemy agents have for too long a time been able to spy on us almost on our own doorstep. They jeopardize the safety of the free nations, among which Eire is numbered."

The Daily Express named Henning Thomsen, secretary to the German legation in Dublin, as chief of the Nazi spy system in Eire.

U. S. Hints Drastic Action Toward Eire

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—Drastic measures to safeguard Allied invasion preparations in Britain from Axis espionage were expected today to follow Prime Minister De Valera's refusal of an American request that Ireland oust German and Japanese diplomats accused of heading a spy ring.

The need for early and decisive action to keep enemy agents from further enlarging their knowledge of Allied plans for the second front assault on Europe was emphasized by an official statement that because of spy activities based on Ireland "not only the success of the operations but the lives of thousands of United Nations' soldiers are at stake."

Meanwhile, the Irish legation here released the text of De Valera's reply, turning down the appeal. De Valera claimed Ireland's counter-spy methods were effective and asserted that no American lives would be lost "through any indifference or neglect of its duty" on the part of his country.

He also made two other main points: That expulsion of German and Japanese officers would be a first step toward going to war with the Axis, which his country is determined not to do; and that he had received assurances from the United States that it did not intend invading Ireland.

Thus for the first time it was officially revealed how gravely the Dublin government had viewed events of the past few weeks, during which the world knew only that Ireland had been swept by waves of invasion jitters.

Several further measures appear to be open to the United States and Britain. They include:

1—Closing and fully guarding the border between Eire and Northern Ireland.

2—Breaking diplomatic relations with the Dublin government. This appeared to be improbable.

3—Clamping down on economic collaboration with Ireland. The country is dependent entirely on British and American shipping.

Sweden Sees Eire Forced Into Fold

STOCKHOLM, March 11 (AP)—The Stockholm Tidningen, commenting on the U. S. request to Eire to remove German and Japanese consular and diplomatic representatives, declared editorially today sooner or later "western neutrals" must align themselves with the Allies whether they like it or not.

"As the war draws nearer to its end, the political pressure of the Allies on those neutral countries which they can control will grow stronger," the newspaper asserted.

AUBURN, Me., March 11 (INS)—Rupert Watson stood firm today in his refusal to execute his dog Trixie despite a court order that the animal be killed because it had allegedly bitten six persons.

SPAIN ALL SET TO OUST LAST 15 AXIS SPIES

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—Spain today was reported to be ready to sweep from the international city of Tangier, across from Gibraltar, the remaining 15 German diplomats of a group of 17 whose ouster was requested by the United States.

An official of the United States government who has just returned from North Africa said two diplomats already had been sent from the movie-like intrigue center. The 17, he said in an interview in which he refused to be identified by name, are among those most objectionable to the State Department. Request for their ouster was made by the United States shortly before this country placed an embargo on oil to Spain.

There are about 50 persons in the consulate, headed by Dr. Kurt Reith, said the official, but he added that he had not learned whether Spain plans to remove those remaining and close the consulate.

The official said that it is a "simple matter for them (the attaches) to watch from their windows ship moving through Gibraltar and radio the news to Berlin."

"In addition," he continued, "they have girls who frequent the few night clubs and bars in the city and pick up all kinds of information helpful to the Axis."

Nazi Host Grows In Yugoslavia

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—Increase of German forces in Yugoslavia to a new peak was reported in a delayed dispatch today on the heels of a Berlin statement that Allied Commandos had landed on the Adriatic island of Lissa and that other raids along the Dalmatian coast might be expected.

The Berlin radio, in a broadcast unconfirmed by any Allied source, asserted that British and American Commandos led by a "Gen. Churchill" had landed on Lissa apparently with the objective of securing the tiny isle.

The reference to Churchill suggested that it might be Capt. Randolph Churchill, 32, Prime Minister Churchill's son, who recently was reported to have parachuted into Yugoslavia to confer with Tito.

2 Hub Fliers Cited in Pacific

Two Boston fliers, Lieut. Paul King and Ensign Bob Burns, distinguished themselves in action over Rabaul, the International News Service reported today from an advanced Solomon base.

Lieut. King, whose home is in Jamaica Plain, was in a bomber dumping tons of explosives when the pilot keeled over from the impact of Jap shrapnel on his armored "flak suit." King, co-pilot, grabbed the controls in time to prevent disaster and flew the bomber until the pilot recovered.

Ensign Burns, in the same raid, was knocked out by ack-ack, but brought his crippled ship back safely to its base.

'Penny for Kenny' Drive Launched at Rally for Nurse

CHICAGO, March 11—A penny for Kenny . . , Out of the smiles of Kenny-cured children and the gratitude of humans free of the tortures of infantile paralysis was born a movement to banish the dread disease with a vow to:

"Keep Sister Kenny here!"

A challenge hurled from the platform of the Oriental Theater Building hall by Dr. Preston Bradley found immediate and thrilling response in the scores of eager youngsters seated about him, all polio victims, and in the hundreds of relatives and friends who cheered the pastor of the Peoples Church of Chicago when he said:

PENNY A YEAR

"If 15,000,000 people would give one penny a year, Sister Kenny would have the required $150,000 annually to carry on her magnificent work. Why not start a campaign with the slogan, 'A Penny for Kenney.' "

Dr. Bradley revealed that the idea was suggested by Mrs. H. B. Gordon of New York City, who sent one hundred pennies to start the drive. Said Dr. Bradley:

"Every great idea, every great personality, every important truth that has ever been of any value to civilization has had a tremendous struggle to overcome difficulties and obstacles in order to get that truth before the people."

Lauding the Hearst press for its support of the cause of Sister Kenny, Dr. Bradley said:

"I cannot help but see victory ahead for Sister Kenny and that means happiness and health and strength for all who are afflicted."

NORMAL PLACE IN LIFE

Dr. Bradley turned to the shining eyed children clustered about him. Many of them, still in process of treatment, had been carried from hospital beds to lend their powerful voice to the need for Sister Kenny.

Said Dr. Bradley:

"It is girls and boys like these that I am thinking of. Are they going to be able to resume their normal place in life? Sister Kenny has been the instrument and agent through which these things can and will happen. I am for this campaign."

Seven-year-old Joan Vorlick, a diminutive blonde, nodded appreciatively. Her mother, Mrs. Goldie Vorlick, explained:

"Joan was stricken when she was a year old. Both legs and hips were paralyzed."

She smiled at the winsome youngster.

Another interested spectator at the Kenny rally was Noreen Linduska, 24, of Cicero, who was so eager to attend that she was carried to an automobile and transferred to a wheel chair at the meeting place.

ARMY MAKES NEWS RULES AFTER WRECK

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP) Criticism of military police interference with news coverage of a North Carolina railway wreck has been followed by an official War Department statement of policy, recognizing the right to report domestic disasters and requiring military cooperation if the Army is involved.

Apparently resulting from protests provoked by refusal of military police to permit William Belch, part-time photographer for the Associated Press, to photograph the Atlantic Coast Line wreck near Lumberton, N. C., in which 70 persons were killed Dec. 16, the Department statement sets out these points:

1—The public is entitled to news which will not adversely affect the war effort, and legitimate activities of news media are to be respected by military personnel.

2—If soldiers are sent to a disaster to protect lives or property, the officer ordering them there will at the same time send army public relations officers from the nearest post to "supervise and assist" the activities of representatives of news agencies.

3—Military personnel assigned to a disaster "never act under the orders of a civil officer or of a civilian" but are "solely and directly responsible to their military superiors."

The statement of policy is contained in a War Department circular dated Feb. 25, but made public today after a brief reference to it in the Army and Navy Journal.

Members of the Massachusetts Youth Committee in Greater Boston today declared they felt their efforts to combat wartime delinquency had been highly repaid as a result of the inspiring enthusiasm showed by 700 young people at the dedication of Boston's 13th youth center.

The newest recreation headquarters was opened at Practical Arts High School in Greenville st., Roxbury, and the meeting was marked by the same eager interest that has characterized openings in other sections of the city.

Students from five schools in the Roxbury section gave comprehensive accounts of their recreational needs and entertained with music and readings.

Members of the students' committee chosen to present the ideas were Norma Proctor and Dorothy Wyman, Practical Arts High School; Helen Wiseman and Phyllis Zipperstein, Memorial High for Girls; Charles Lewis and Jack Hirsh, Memorial High for Boys; Robert Chartier and Joan McBurnie, Timilty Intermediate School, and Derrie Nichols and William Fitzpatrick, Lewis Intermediate School.

Heads of the schools, Miss Mabel E. Bowker, Miss Myrtle C. Dickson, Robert Masterson, John B. Dacey and Frederick A. Guindon, were at the opening.

Chairman of the meeting was School Committeeman Joseph C. White, who was introduced by Asst. Supt. Dennis C. Haley. Other school committeemen at the meeting were Clement C. Norton and Michael J. Ward, and Dr. Patrick J Foley, chairman.

Invocation was by Rabbi Benjamin L. Grossman of Beth Hanidrash Hagodol Synagogue, who called for a post-war world free from racial prejudice and bigotry.

is in the mess sergeant's and cook's different interest in food, and their variable ability to improvise. Some get good ones and some don't.

I've seen some savory roasts cooking in a barracks kitchen, and some very sleazy grub dished out in others, and I'll bear witness that the officers don't fare much, if any, better, than their men—the same tomato sauce spaghetti, or K-ration chili con carne, or slum gullion or canned weenies, or brussels sprouts, or powdered eggs, with now and again a bit of fresh meat or chicken, and a dish of tinned butter.

But never any fresh milk or eggs or fruit, which are reserved for the English children. Occasionally, in desperation for the taste of genuine hen fruit, a soldier will manage to buy a couple of bootleg eggs from a friendly farmer, and either swallow them raw or covertly boil them in some little woodsy hideaway.

The coffee is at least 300 per cent better than it was in that other world war, when it usually resembled tepid bath water. Nowadays the mess sergeant doesn't use his coffee grounds more than once, and brews it black and strong.

Cocoa is another novelty. Tinned fruit juices, mostly pineapple and grapefruit, are a staple at some breakfasts. All this talk about shipping huge quantities of dehydrated meats and other edibles (except the ever present powdered eggs and milk) is hokum.

Jam Apple Butter

Apple butter, jam and peanut butter are available on most mess tables. Cheese is rare. Seafoods of any sort are non-existant. Yet, when compared with the average British army mess or civilian restaurant menus, the U. S. soldier feeds like a lord. (Ed. Note—I hope no oversea G. I. reads the last remark. I could get shot for saying that.)

MONEY — The American soldier's reputation as a spendthrift who tosses his funds around like confetti at a mardi gras, is based mostly on his adventures in London and other city leave centers. Actually, in the training camps and down country areas, the soldier hasn't much he can buy—a little beer, a smidgeon of liquor.

Furthermore, the many finance officers I have talked with attest that our troops allot most of their pay to homefolks. But when he goes on furlough he scrapes together all the currency he has saved or can beg or borrow or win at dice.

He goes fairly well heeled—with perhaps 50 pounds sterling in his pockets. And he spends it on whatever suits his fancy—which is as it should be.

He is a lavish tipper, partly because of generosity and partly because he doesn't understand the meager scale of British tipping and doesn't want to be considered a piker, and largely because he has a mistrust of the flimsy "wall paper money, which, according to his notion, doesn't seem like money at all.

Neither will be haggle over the price of what he wants, with the result that many British merchants have boosted their sales tags scandalously on unrationed articles—to the consternation of the native customers.

How Yanks Are Received

So the U. S. soldier doesn't always show to advantage in London, where he is "letting his hair down" for a few days before returning to the seclusion and hardship of his outfit. And the British press opinion of him is based almost wholly on his London actions, which are anything but typical.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS—The small-town English have shown themselves as fraternal with our men as any outland Americans could be, having generally accepted them at a friendly face value.

The rural English think he's a folksy sort, this Yank, with a bit of music on the tip of his tongue. So lo! presently he knows where to get his much needed laundry washed, and a spot of mending done, and a congenial place beside the kitchen hearth—the closest substitute for home.

The natives like the soldier's glib, strange talk, and the "doggies" like the family atmosphere. I can testify that our men, in their billet surroundings, are well disciplined and courteous with such little civilities and ordinaries of fellowship as are their finest asset.

But here again, London is a different matter, and the population of the huge, sprawling town is, like all metropolitan cities, sophisticated, impersonal, disillusioned and more aloof than their country cousins.

And now, after taking a brutal tossing around during the Blitz, the native Londoner is being herded, jostled and mobbed by a mixture of Allied nationalities, including the 59 varieties of refugees and soldiery which includes a heavy saturation of U. S. troops.

Girl Problem

And that's the general source of whatever critical analogy you find in your home town paper of the so-called "British impression," which is no more typical of British opinion than if you should ask a lounger in Times sq. what he thinks of Utah. London is by way of being a boom town—and doesn't like it!

Then there's that matter which the English papers call "the girl problem." I don't think it bad taste to say that English girls like the Yanks, and despite reports that they are atracted by the doughboy's dough, it is rather because the U. S. soldier has the gift of romantic lingo, and the ability to show a lady deference.

It is the quality not easily understood in Europe, where the tendency is to take women for granted, somewhat as household furniture.

MORALE — There's more than one intelligent reason behind the exhausting routine of the training areas of England — the eternal tramping over moors and roads, the finnicky picking up of every microscopic scrap of rubbish, the inspections of men, arms and equipment, the incessant saluting and the 101 irritating labors of field and barracks.

It's not merely to polish the already slick perfection of these postgrads of the U. S. preliminary camps. It's to keep them mentally and physically occupied to the last ounce and inch of their energy, during 10 hours a day, and bring 'em back tired. By comparison, actual battle becomes a welcome prospect.

Anything to end this treadmill monotony. Anything to get on with the real job and go home—or else.

Morale Building

Maybe it sounds silly to call this "morale building." But it amounts to just that. For it's the Army's system of spiritual stiffening, with no time for droop. Despite the many fussy furbaloos and old-maid quirks—some of which are carried to excess—the U. S. field command knows that it is dangerous for officer or man to dream (brood) too much. For the inactive mind often nurses exaggeration. So just enough time for "little dreams" but not enough for hallucination.

These men of the great assault theater are the survivors—the fit, the capable and the ones selected to meet the coming crisis. They may not realize it, but these soldiers in the cold, fogbound and rain drenched areas of Britain, are "winers" of a great weeding out process, in which they have been purposely exposed to ordeals of nerve and muscle to test them for stamina, will and morale fibre.

Admittedly, none of them relish the life. All want to go home. Each has his pet peeves and inner spasms. But they are "taking it" with a philosophic acceptance of the inevitable, and deserve their accolade "good soldiers." I say with proper reverence, "I'm proud of the solid care of American manhood."

Jane Bancroft Decker Weds

By BETTY ALDEN

SENTIMENT played a large part in the wedding of Mrs. Jane Bancroft Decker and Lieut. Edwin Lee Steele, USNR, in St. Stephen's Church, Cohasset, yesterday.

The famous carillon which the bride's mother, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, gave to the church in memory of her mother, was played for a half hour before and after the ceremony by an old family friend, Prof. Kamiel LeFevre, who used to play the largely attended summer evening carillon concerts in Cohasset. Formerly of Malines Cathedral in Belgium he is now carillon player at Riverside Church, New York. Carillon music is particularly linked with the Bancroft family since in 1927 Mrs. Bancroft was decorated by the Belgian government for her work in spreading knowledge of this peculiarly Belgian form of music.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE by her brother, Hugh Bancroft, Jane wore a pearl gray dress, black straw halo hat and carried her grandmother's silver prayer book with white orchid markers.

Her sister, Mrs. William C. Cox, was her only attendant and wore emerald green with white accessories and corsage of lilies of the valley. Pinned to the neckline of her dress was a diamond brooch in the shape of a horse, an appropriate and sentimental piece of jewelry since she is famous as a horsewoman and judge of shows both at home and abroad.

Rev. Charles A. Wilson of St. Stephens' officiated and Prof. Earl A. Chamberlain was the organist. Mr. Cox was best man. Mrs. Bancroft wore Mayflower pink lace with lavender orchids and Mrs. Watson Steele, of St. Louis, the groom's mother, was in aqua with a flower hat and orchid corsage. His sister, Mrs. Hugh C. Dunaway, wore chartreuse with matching flowers on her black templet.

THE BRIDE was the widow of Lieut. Ernest E. Decker who lost his life in the Pacific. Lieut. Steele, graduate of the U. of Alabama, is stationed at Squantum. He is a gifted pianist and Jane both sings and acts, so together they had a lot of fun entertaining at their bridal eve party at the Cox's.

Wedding guests included Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Jr., dressed in a nifty black faille suit and accompanied by her three-year-old daughter; Lieut. and Mrs. Robert Bainbridge, Mrs. Sargent Collier, Miss Grace Collier, noted artist; Mrs. Nathaniel Winthrop, Mrs. Prescott Cumner and Mrs. John Bishop who entertained at a bridal luncheon, and wore a mouth-watering purple wool peplum suit with sable scarf.

Shirley Temple Stepping Out

Tax Study

A Helping Hand—As the time grows shorter, the lines grow longer at the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue, 141 Milk st., with thousands of taxpayers giving up the struggle and throwing the whole thing in the laps of experts. Here are some of the bewildered tax-form wrestlers concentrating on their problems.

Delaware Wakes Up

THE ORGANIZED and vigorous protests registered by farming communities in Delaware against establishment of Japanese colonies in their midst may prove to be the factor that has been needed to make the nation as a whole understand that Japanese relocation is a NATIONAL PROBLEM.

Most of the States have not had a Japanese problem of their own.

Many of their people had never even SEEN a Japanese.

Consequently they have had no direct interest in the situation, and no real understanding of its serious nature, and indeed no very great sympathy for the Western States which had to deal with it.

This explains the persistent and continuing apathy of the American people about the problem of Japanese relocation, and about the mismanagement and bungling of it by the War Relocation Authority.

They were too far away from it to be affected, and too busy with other matters to worry about it.

But now Delaware communities have suddenly had the problem put squarely in their midst, and they are reacting to it exactly as the Western communities earlier reacted.

They see the prospect of these relocated Japanese taking over their rich farming, dairying and fishing industries, and they DON'T LIKE IT.

They know these Japanese were removed from the Pacific Coast States by the military authorities at the beginning of the war, because it was not SAFE to leave them there.

They know the Army was unable to distinguish between the loyal and disloyal Japanese, and played safe by segregating them all—not brutally or inhumanely, as thousands of Americans have been treated in Japanese prison camps, but in comfortable and sanitary centers where they have been well treated and well fed and have had every provision made for their medical, educational and recreational needs.

They know now what they refused to heed before, that the coddling and pampering policies of the inefficient and incompetent War Relocation Authority have largely undermined the sensible and safe program initiated by the Army.

It is good for the country to be made aware of the NATIONAL nature of this problem.

As long as the Western States had to deal with it alone, there was not a real awareness of it.

But the experience of Delaware only repeats the long experience of the Western States, and it will be the experience of every State and every American community in which the resettled Japanese become an intimate rather than a remote problem.

Perhaps our Eastern section of the United States, now having a direct and personal interest in the Japanese relocation problem, will take a more active and realistic interest in its solution.

If so, the Representatives in Congress of the Western States who have struggled ineffectively for an AMERICAN solution of the problem will no longer have to struggle ALONE.

No Secret Treaties

GOVERNOR BRICKER, of Ohio, one of the most courageous and mentally keen Americans of the day, in a recent speech at Chapel Hill, N. C., pointed out how the habitual secrecy of the Administration is leading it straight to a seizure of all-out legislative power—in these words:

"There is grave apprehension in Congress that there is an intention on the part of the administration to deprive the U. S. Senate of its constitutional power to ratify treaties with foreign nations.

"Such a move would make possible on the part of any Administration the making of secret treaties and alliances and understandings with foreign governments, with all of the intrigue and secrecy that have involved the countries of the Old World for centuries."

There are many persons today who actually believe that the Atlantic Charter is an international treaty.

Nothing in Washington is ever said to disabuse the minds of these persons.

The Atlantic Charter, as a matter of fact, is nothing but an agreement secretly arrived at on board a war vessel at sea by a Prime Minister and a President.

"How far has your government today gone," asks Governor Bricker, speaking of possible secret treaties, "in concealing the facts from you, the citizens of the Republic?"

It is up to Congress to reply to that question.

And it can be done by Congress requesting that, whenever it sees fit, the President, the Secretary of State and other responsible officers of our government should appear before Congress to answer questions.

That is the procedure of England's Parliament.

However, we have had a few healthy Congressional revolts against bureaucratic ukases of late.

There should be another one and that is a revolt against secrecy concerning treaties and "conferences."

You have learned
To relish a love-song
Like a robin-redbreast.
—SHAKESPEARE.

THE ROBIN has quite a reputation as a singer of love songs. However, I have been told a Carolina wren does much better. This versatile bird can sing eight different songs when advertising for a mate. How many different songs can a canary sing? I wouldn't know. I never owned one. However, I understand it is the male canary that sings . . . Ever try a vitamin B-1 cocktail? Neither have I. In case you don't know, this cocktail is made from the juice of canned asparagus, green beans, lima beans and peas . . . Black market nylon stockings are made from material intended for and illegally diverted from military use. Women buying black market nylons should keep this in mind. A buyer in a black market is as bad as a seller. Both are heels and are impeding the war effort.

STOLEN IDEA: What is making it so tough for the United Nations bombers to knock the Nazis out of the war is the decentralization of German war industry. Some people credit this decentralization to the alleged German genius for efficiency. Fact is, Nazi Gen. Heinrich Mayer, responsible for the decentralization, stole his idea from a plan originated 15 years ago by the late Gen. Billy Mitchell of the United States Army.

PASSING BY: Dolly Dawn. Chanteuse from Chicago. She introduced that touching torch song, titled, "The Meanest Thing You Ever Did Was Kiss Me." . . . Fred Turner. Counsel of public relations for Washington Park and Arlington racetracks. Was formerly associated with Dr. Charles Strub, ex-Pooh-Bah of the Santa Anita race track. Dr. Strub recently bought into the San Francisco Baseball Club. I think the good doctor believes the city by the Golden Gate is in line for a major league franchise after the war.

ASIDES: Canada has no meat rationing. However, I have not heard whether a Detroit housewife can take a short ride over the river to Windsor, Ont., and return with several pounds of fine steak . . . A fluid that will absolutely keep the mosquitoes at a distance has been developed by United States scientists and is now used by our troops in the tropics. Will be available to the general public after the war. While the odor is objectionable to mosquitoes it smells sweet to humans, having an effect similar to perfume.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—My daughter is left-handed. Have there been many successful women who were southpaws? A—Our data on left-handed women is not extensive, but we know Judy Garland and Ida Lupino are southpaws and they are two of the smartest girls in Hollywood . . . Q—What city has the best-dressed business girls? A—New York leads in this respect by a wide margin. After New York in order named come the business girls of San Francisco, Dallas, Tex.; Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and Atlanta, Ga.

GET IT RIGHT: States a musical expert: "You are right in stating the correct title of that tune is 'Two Hearts That Beat in Waltz Time.' That English wording is used to get the proper lilt." States a theatrical expert: "Your memory amazes me. Somebody said Katherine Harris, the first Mrs. Jack Barrymore was a socialite and had never been on the stage. You immediately replied Katherine had played with Jack Barrymore in 'Kick In.' Before me I have a program of the Republic Theater, New York, dated Dec. 7, 1914, and it reveals that in 'Kick In' Jack Barrymore played 'Chick' Hewes and Katherine Harris played Daisy. What do you do with all the stogies you win? Be careful you'll smoke yourself to death."

INCUBATOR BABY: Do you know any people who were incubator babies? How are they doing? A Seattle subscriber writes: "My 2-year-old daughter can say her prayers and four nursery rhymes. She helps dry silverware and dishes, washes her own hands and knows all the colors. She was an incubator baby weighing five pounds six ounces at birth. She is now a big strong girl weighing 26 pounds."

My Day By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Friday —On our arrival in Jamaica we were met by His Excellency, the Governor, and Lady Huggins, as well as by several other island officials and Col. Dallin, who is in command of the U. S. Army post. Gen. Shedd also had come over from Puerto Rico and stayed with us for the whole time that we were visiting the various activities on the base.

We began with a visit to the hospital, which was brief because, as I told you, there were so few patients. But they gave us tea, and I had a chance to talk with the men. Then we went to the officers' club where we met most of the officers, and later to the officers' mess for dinner. They have the same kind of crayfish that one gets off the coast of Florida, and these were the greatest treat. Then we proceeded with the entire post personnel, it seemed, to the outdoor theater where a movie was shown. I said a few words to the men.

FROM THERE WE WENT OVER to the enlisted men's club, where one of the native Jamaican men sang some folk songs which were most amusing. I was warned that I would find their dialect hard to understand, but except for the fact that the names were unusual, it did not seem very difficult.

The boys came trouping in from the theater, and I noticed two boys sitting together eating ice cream and drinking milk. There is a dairy here so they can have fresh cow's milk.

We got to bed fairly early, but then we had to get up early the next morning to get started on our rounds by 7:30.

THE CHAPEL IS ATTRACTIVE, but the commanding officer says the men are not very good church goers. Before leaving, we also went to the club for civilian native workers who help maintain the grounds. They are very proud of their own mess hall, barracks and club, and are shortly going to have a club for the women workers.

NEVER LET IT be said that Kenneth Mac Gowan's "Lifeboat" didn't stir up plenty of controversy. So, naturally, his next production at 20th rates considerable interest. There are still people, believe it or not, fighting the Civil War, so maybe Mac Gowan has another hot subject. HOLLYWOOD, March 11—It is the White House set for "Wilson," and there is to be a scene between Woodrow Wilson, played by Alexander Knox, and William Gibbs McAdoo, played by Vincent Price.

Don Ameche

While they are waiting to do the sequence McAdoo says to Wilson: "Did you ever visit the White House?"

"No," replied Wilson, "but now I'm most anxious and would like to if it could be arranged."

"I visited the White House," said Price. "Several other players were along. We were shown a number of the rooms, including the Lincoln room.

"It was a very interesting visit," went on Price, "and then someone asked if any of the present occupants had ever seen the ghost of Lincoln. Referring to the legend that Lincoln haunts the White House.

"Mrs. Roosevelt, who was guiding the group, replied: 'It's not too difficult to believe that the White House has ghosts. So many men have left here with their work unfinished.'

* * *

DON AMECHE and Dana Andrews have just completed a scene for "Wing and a Prayer" in which they were playing gin rummy in the officers' ward room of a carrier, and the game continued after the camera stopped.

Every gin player has a favorite gin rummy story, and Don Ameche told his while playing. Don's story is about a gin rummy addict who had some friends at his house, and, of course, got into a game of gin with one of the guests. A kibitzer was standing at his shoulder. This kibitzer would watch the game with interest, and then walk away into another room. Then he'd return and kibitz again. He kept up this procedure for quite a while. Finally, he returned and said to the gin rummy addict: "I don't like to bother you, but I just saw your wife in the den and she was making love to the tall, handsome guest."

"That's ridiculous," said the card fiend, picking up a card and playfully saying to his opponent: "I think I'll try gin. Is it any good?"

After collecting his points, this gin addict turned to the kibitzer and asked: "How do you know it's my wife?" "I saw her face," said the kibitzer.

"You're absolutely sure," said the gin rummy fiend, "that it's my wife in there making love." The kibitzer assured him. "Then in that case," said the gin rummy addict to his opponent, "this is absolutely the last game."

For complete coverage, I must inform you that Don was taking Dana, who wanted to play just "one more."

Politics of Prejudice

By George E. Sokolsky

A CORRESPONDENT from Stamford, Ct., writes:

"Isn't the so-called racial and religious prejudice and discrimination which has grown so in recent years, basically political? Americans don't take religion seriously, not seriously enough, and it can't simply be a coincidence that of all the 30 or 40 races in this country the two hollering about discrimination just happen to be staunch supporters of the New Deal. If that is true, we'll see prejudice disappear with a Republican victory this fall."

There has always been prejudice and discrimination. The Bible itself is a record of differences, disagreements, prejudices and discriminations. All of history recounts the prejudices of one people against another. This war, from every standpoint, is a sacrifice to prejudice.

Its persistence as a human characteristic, does not make prejudice right any more than the persistence of influenza makes it good. But prejudice and discrimination are psychological and social phenomena which must be recognized and understood.

* * *

THERE IS NOT the slightest doubt but that politicians in this country are utilizing the existence of this condition in their own interest and to their own advantage no matter what the cost may be to the nation. Their mouthpieces stir hate and cite every little incident as an example of some vast and devious plot to extirpate some group of people whom they call a minority.

Recently, Al Smith and I were lunching and we became reminiscent of the good old days on the East Side when the boys on Grand Street used to collect glass bottles to go down to fight the boys on Cherry Street. The fight was usually about some major issue such as the right to dive into the East River off a certain dock, the Cherry Streeters maintaining that that was their territory, while we Grand Streeters insisted upon freedom of the seas. The fight was usually a very good one, particularly if one side could get some Allies. We often got the boys from Pitt Street while the Cherry Hill gang got some boys from Hell's Kitchen which was on the west side.

* * *

THE GRAND STREET boys were mostly Jews, although occasionally an Irish, Italian or Polish boy came along and did some excellent fighting on our side. The Cherry Street boys were Irish and Catholic but they also had some outsiders. Many of us are now members of the Grand Street Boys Club to which Cherry Street belongs and we dine and wine together and our greatest joy is to talk about the good, old days.

Suddenly, all this honest-to-goodness fun has become juvenile delinquency which gives a lot of jobs to social workers and if a boy thinks up some great idea of painting an insulting remark or emblem on a church or a public building, there is a sinister plot afoot to destroy the nation. It will soon become a crime for a kid to write "Maggie Loves Johnny" on the sidewalk in chalk swiped from the school blackboard. It will become a felony to call names.

* * *

MY CORRESPONDENT is correct. The politicians are dividing us to control us. They have their pet radio noisters stir up antagonisms to win votes. Take, for example, the case of Senator Wheeler. He used to be known as the leading Liberal in the United States Senate. Go through the "New Republic" and "The Nation" during the past quarter of a century to see how the liberals used to praise and cheer him. He was one of the first Americans to warn this country against Hitler. He used to make speeches for all the so-called minorities, including the Negroes and the Jews.

Now, Wheeler is constantly being attacked as an anti-Semite. What made him one? Why, the Senator turned anti-New Deal. In a word, a friend is called a foe by constant repetition of falsehoods concerning him. The manufacturer of the lies concerning Senator Wheeler is manufacturing racial enmities. There is a frightening technique in all this—a technique for vote-getting.

RED CROSS FUND HITS $1,508,000

As the 1944 Red Cross War Fund campaign reached the half-way mark, $1,508,000—or 41.7 per-cent of the quota—has been contributed, it was announced today.

An example for those on the home front was set today as the U. S. Coast Guard units in Boston became the first of the military organizations in this district to go over the top in the drive.

Although solicitation among Coast Guardsmen is still not completed, Commodore Wilfred N. Derby, honorary War Fund chairman of the Coast Guard section of the public employes division, reported the quota exceeded by 11 per cent.

Response of the Coast Guard was especially prompt and generous in recognition of the assistance extended through the Red Cross, at the time of the Cocoanut Grove disaster, to Clifford Johnson, a Coast Guardsman.

Military leaders in New England and soldiers who have personally seen the Red Cross in action in battle are issuing new pleas for support of this humanitarian organization.

"Not only does the Red Cross render invaluable service to our fighters, but it unhesitatingly aids their relatives at home when aid is needed, meanwhile keeping its facilities ready for any disaster that may require its services," said Maj.-Gen. Sherman Miles, commanding general of the First Service Command.

DEAL CHOKING BUSINESS, SAYS COL. ROCKWELL

Government controls over wages, production, prices and profits must end in order for business and industry to make any sound plans for the post-war era.

This assertion, by Col. Willard F. Rockwell, former director of production for the U. S. Maritime Commission, highlighted the annual meeting of the Oil Heat Institute of New England, during which the federal government's holds on industry were blamed for "strangling" efficient business.

SOURCES DRYING UP

"The art of using a flood of tax money to buy votes has reached a point where the sources are drying up," Col. Rockwell declared, "and the only hope in this country now is to throw out the advocates of such practices and to return to constitutional government."

He charged that millions of dollars had been wasted or "confiscated" through price ceilings and accused the Roosevelt administration of breaking all promises that were made when it was voted into power 12 years ago.

Other speakers likewise spoke with concern over what appear to be government attempts to get into business, the oil business in particular, and Warren C. Platt of Cleveland, publisher of the National Petroleum News, said Washington was deliberately creating an oil shortage to make expansion of government oil projects popular.

EYE ON ARABIA

"By saying to the people 'there is a shortage of oil in this country,' the government can go ahead with its talked of plan to install a pipeline in Arabia," Platt said.

Frank W. Lovejoy of the Socony-Vacuum Company denied that America's oil reserves are anywhere near gone. In the 85 years that oil has been taken from the earth in this country, one cubic mile of petroleum has been consumed, he said, whereas at least four and one-half cubic miles remain untouched.

Huge Drop Foreseen In Maine Fish Haul

AUGUSTA, Me., March 11—Prediction that Maine's fishing production would fall far below last year's was made today by Arthur B. Greenleaf, state sea and shore fisheries commissioner.

Greenleaf said the rate at which men are going into the armed services would indicate that 1944 production would suffer seriously.

ALEC TEMPLETON, famous blind pianist and improvisor, who will give a concert in Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon.

'Ali Baba'--In Color--Thrills Again at Keith Memorial

By PEGGY DOYLE

Technicolor has brought back alive "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," first screened in 1918 and a score of years later with Eddie Cantor starring in a modernized version, "Ali Baba Goes to Town."

Now showing on Keith Memorial screen with Maria Montez and Jon Hall, again starred as the lovers in this sequel to their box-office success, "Arabian Nights," it looks to be a Universal bonanza if not exactly an artistic triumph.

Visually, "Ali Baba" is an eye-feast, abounding in lavish, colorful sets and peek-a-boo costumes, harem lovelies that had to measure up to Hollywood, not Arab, Persion or Turk, dimensional requirements, and "beavers" that would make a whisker-bedecked seaman envious.

With all this to bug out your eyes, it is possible that the provocatively curved Montez, despite her customary deadpan performance, will pass muster. Both she and Hall, a pair of Fisher bodies if you ever saw any, are as bland a twosome as ever found themselves involved in derring-do. A fracas that would leave you and you and you wilted, bushed, done in finds these handsome creatures fresh as the well-known daisy and ready for the next encounter with destiny.

Ali, played by Hall, is the dauntless leader of the 40 thieves who are in the fight with him to reclaim his heritage from Hulagu Khan, venal Mongol ruler who has murdered the Caliph, Ali's father, when the barbarous hordes conquered Bagdad.

Contrary to the Khan's belief, the infant Ali was not drowned, has grown up to be the leader of a band of bandits who saved his life. They are greatly feared and there is widespread rejoicing when their leader is captured by the Khan's soldiers. But Ali's miracle-working followers save him, capture the Khan's bride-to-be as a hostage in exchange for her traitorous father.

She, of course, is Maria and her eyes grow as big as gran'ma's when she learns that the thieves' leader is not a wolf out of the Arabian nights but the Caliph's son to whom she was betrothed in their infancy. You can guess the rest, but if there is no surprise there is brilliant pageantry, not to forget those cover-girl potentialities in the harem.

Beauty

Suede Bags for Summer

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

BE PRETTY . . . BE FEMININE . . . for that is the seasonal trend in beauty and fashions this spring. The war has revived the old-fashioned kind of sentimentality in our hearts . . . and women prompted by that "old feeling" . . . are giving expression to tenderness and devotion to loved one through the complacency of facial loveliness. Twentieth-Century-Fox star Anne Baxter not only plays heroine roles . . . but looks like one.

THIS SPRING AND SUMMER . . . smart women everywhere . . . will carry dark, rich, non-smudge suede handbags . . . soft and lustrous and color-fast . . . to heighten a dressmaker suit . . . ideal for dress-up occasions of all kinds . . .and give dramatic accent and importance to a print or white summer ensemble.

Yes! . . . I said non-smudge suede bags . . . an innovation to be sure, thanks to Koret . . . that pioneering genius of handbag creations. Most of us always thrilled to carrying "antelopes" and suedes in winter months . . . but shied away from them in the warmth of summer because they were unpractical for light clothes and gloves.

But the new suede bag . . . high-styled for spring and summer wear . . . is an experimental wonder . . . and guaranteed against rubbing off on your flimsy perishables for warm-weather wearing.

In adopting these seasonless handbags . . . women will be getting ready for our "small" global home of tomorrow . . . Koret points out . . . shrunk in time and space to the point where seasonless fashions will be required . . . to serve a woman in every country and clime.

Not so long ago . . . it was the custom of smart continental women to carry fine, dark suede handbags throughout the year . . . regardless of season . . . whenever the occasion or costume called for them. Thus a tradition of yesteryear becomes a fashion today . . . a vogue that only American women are privileged to enjoy now . . . but one which will again be universal when the world is free.

DAYTIME BAGS ARE ROOMIER

This season women will seek not a matching handbag . . . but an important one . . . one that will lend real fashion interest and line and a dash of color or bold contrast to the simple, severe silhouette of clothes. Decorative and beautiful as the spring bag styles are . . . prime purpose of the Koret bag is practicability . . . because a woman should expect more service of her bag today and tomorrow . . . in her enlarged world of activities.

Hence, new daytime bags are roomier . . . more accessible and better equipped than ever. New sizes and shapes range all the way from the fattest, softest little shirred pouch bag . . . to the largest shoulder strap handbag . . . almost luggage in size . . . and including every geometrical variation of squareness, roundness, oblongness and restangularness . . . all perfectly proportioned and fashioned.

If you cannot afford a range of handbags . . . buy, at least, one or two of the very best, most important bags you can select . . . rather than a series of miscellaneous bags of poor, insignificant design and quality. A distinctive handbag will add smartness to even an inexpensive suit or dress.

Fashion

INTRIGUINGLY SMART is this new tunic dress of black crepe . . . with turned-down collar of velvet . . . and black velvet buttons at the front closing. Tunics are an advanced fashion item this spring . . . to break the severity of the straight up-and-down pencil silhouette so difficult for so many figures. Warner starlet Lucia Carroll softens the outfit with a black velvet pillbox . . . accented with flowing black tulle . . . which can be under the chin . . . or used in other decorative ways.—R. M.

Pie--Serve It Often

By MARTHA LEE

PIE, the all-American dessert, can have its innings at the family dinner table this month, unrestrained by ration points, if the cook knows the secrets of making pastry with lard.

Lard, if properly mixed, makes a pastry that is tender and flaky rather than mealy. Three important points for achieving this flaky texture are: First, have lard and water very cold; second, use as little water as possible to hold the dry ingredients together, and sprinkle the water on; third, work the dough as little as possible.

A good all-purpose flour is better than a very soft flour for pastry, because the dough it makes is easier to handle and the pastry more flaky. The proportions for one pie are as follows:

FLAKY PASTRY

1½ cups sifted flour
1 tsp. salt
5 or 6 tbsp. lard

To moisten this quantity only about 2½ to 2 tablespoons of water are necessary. The cold solid lard is cut into the flour, or worked in rapidly with the fingertips until only a few particles about the size of peas remain. The water is sprinkled, never poured on the dry mixture. A small salt shaker or some other such utensil can be used and will moisten the particles of flour and fat evenly. Then the mixture is molded into a stiff dough with a fork and allowed to stand about 5 minutes before rolling out. Instead of rolling on a floured board and adding extra flour to the dough, lay the dough between waxed papers and roll it out. If the pastry is baked before the filling is added, as in custard type pies and some fruit pies, it takes only 10 or 12 minutes in a hot oven.

BUTTERSCOTCH CHIFFON PIE

1 baked 9-inch pie shell
1 envelope plain unflavored gelatin (1 tbsp.)
¼ cup cold water
3 eggs, separated
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup scalded milk
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla extract
½ cup granulated sugar

Soak gelatin in the cold water 5 minutes. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually beat in the brown sugar, then the milk. Add butter and salt, and cook in top of double boiler over hot, not boiling water, stirring until custard-like. Stir in gelatin. Cool; add vanilla. Beat the egg whites until quite stiff. Then add the granulated sugar gradually, while continuing to beat until stiff. Fold into cooled custard, then pour into pie shell. Chill until set. Chill any leftover filling for luncheon dessert. Makes one 9-inch pie.

LEMON PIE

(Two Crust)

Pastry for two crusts
1½ cups sugar
⅓ cup all-purpose flour
2 tbsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
2½ cups boiling water
3 eggs
6 tbsp. lemon juice
3 tbsp. grated lemon rind

Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry. Combine 1 cup of the sugar, the flour, cornstarch and salt in a double boiler. Add the boiling water gradually, stirring constantly. Cook over boiling water until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and pour over the eggs, which have been beaten with the remaining ½ cup of sugar, while stirring constantly. Add lemon juice and lemon rind, and cool thoroughly. Pour into the lined pie plate. Adjust top crust. Bake in a hot oven of 450 deg. F. for 30 minutes. Makes one 9-inch pie.

Save waste kitchen fats for gunpowder. Take them in clean, wide-mouthed cans to your meat dealer.

Demands Full Benefits

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I have the best little woman in the world for my mother. She worked early and late, after my father's death, to bring us up and educate us. She refused two good men who wanted to marry her, because she was afraid to take the risk of a step-father for us kids. And now that she's old and broken in health I took out the full amount of insurance, $10,000, and made it over to her.

At a certain post I met a very attractive widow with three children. We became engaged, and the date of our wedding was set. However, this lady demanded, in no uncertain terms, with a raised voice, that I turn over the entire insurance I had taken out for my mother to her. I offered to divide the insurance, naming both my mother and my wife as beneficiaries. But she said she wouldn't go on with the marriage if I would not consent to name her as sole beneficiary. This has changed my feelings toward her and I've decided to call quits on the engagement. What's your opinion?

A. W. G.

It seems to me you're very wise to stop, look and listen before going on with the marriage with such a selfish person. As you say your mother has done everything for you and her other children, and certainly now that she is old and not well, you should take account of her sacrifices. It shows a very unlovely trait in a woman to be so grasping, and I'm glad you've taken the attitude you have, instead of weakly succumbing to this lady's demands. A good many service men seem putty in the hands of these possessive-plus females.

Spring Ensemble

By BETTINA BEDWELL

IT IS going to be easier to get a hat and handbag ensemble this spring because both are apt to be made of the same material and by famous millinery and handbag designers.

To wear right away with a spring coat or suit, Miss Dulin has sketched an ideal ensemble of this type. Mme. Pauline, famed milliner, is introducing this pair of matching accessories. The hat is a mushroom cloche and the bag a big carryall type. Both are made of beige felt. They are covered solidly with wavy lines of silk cord which comes in shades from the deepest chocolate brown to pale beige, making a delightful tone-on-tone color scheme.

This is the kind of hat and handbag that look decorative and at the same time can be worn in all kinds of weather.

Marian Martin Pattern

Pattern 9098 may be ordered in sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6. Size 6 takes 1 medium size man's shirt or 1⅝ yards 35-inch fabric.

Send 20 cents in coins for these patterns to Boston Evening American 21, Pattern Department, 232 West 18th st., New York 11, N. Y. Write plainly size, name, address, style number.

JVA Aids Scout Drives

Plans for summer camping by Boy Scouts of the Boston Council, whose ranks include scores of Junior Victory Army members, will get underway Sunday, March 19, at a meeting in the "Barn" at 45 Beacon st.

Henry "Mac" McGinty will have charge. The course is a "must" for all senior scouts who expect to get a camp staff job for the summer. It is also open to senior scouts and scouters of troops planning to conduct their own camps this summer at Loon Pond.

Acquisition of sites at Loon Pond are rapidly being obtained with 70 per cent of the available weeks already designated.

Meanwhile JVA boys affiliated with the Boy Scouts are helping the Red Cross drive this month by distributing 200,000 "Boston" booklets. They are also backing the Boy Scout membership campaign for "A Thousand More in '44."

To join the JVA, send your name, age and address to Junior Victory Army headquarters, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well-wrapped in your letter.

Tunney Picks Dempsey Best All-Time Heavy

By BILL CORUM

We were sitting at a luncheon table in a New York hotel the other day with Comdr. Gene Tunney, Walter Trumbull and Grantland Rice, when the former heavyweight champion chanced to mention that on his return from the Pacific a San Francisco reporter had asked him to name, and rate, the 10 top heavyweights of all time.

Tunney, naturally, did not include himself. But his name belongs in such a list and here are the ten the four of us agreed on:

Jack Dempsey

Sullivan, Fitzsimmons, Corbett, Peter Jackson, Langford, Dempsey, Tunney, Johnson, Jeffries, Louis.

Their names are not set down in any particular order and, to tell the truth, we couldn't agree on who should head the list.

Had Begun to Slip

Tunney, whose vote in the matter should carry the most weight, put Dempsey at the head of his own list. There is, however, an obvious catch in that. Gene beat Jack twice, yet I'm sure he is not inferring that he himself was the greatest of 'em all. What I think he does infer is that the Manassa man had begun to slip even before he, Tunney, fought him the first time, the night of the big rain in Philly.

There is no doubt about that in my opinion. Whether Tunney, great boxer that he was, smart as he was, and owning one of the best left hands we ever saw, could have handled the tiger-like Dempsey that fought Jess Willard is highly questionable and I imagine that is the Dempsey Gene must be thinking of when he rates him on top of the heavyweight heap.

Gives Palm to Jack

The commander calls Jack the most instinctive and natural fighter, with the greatest amount of animal-like cunning, that he ever saw. But I believe the majority will agree that quite a lot of that inborn fierceness had seeped out of the shaky-legged Dempsey of the Sesqui Stadium.

Jack was in better shape in Chicago and, of course, came closer to winning. Many, indeed, always will consider him the real winner of that fight. I can't agree. But we must all agree that Jack, at least, threw away a golden opportunity to win by a knockout, when he stubbornly refused to obey the rules.

All that is a too oft-told old wives' tale now. What I was wondering was whether you'd like to try your hand at rating the 10 big fellows named above. Or whether, perhaps, you think you could draw up a better list.

I recall that Nat Fleischer, editor of The Ring and certainly a qualified observer, published a similar list recently in which I believe he ranked Jack Johnson Number One.

My vote would have to go to Louis. No fighter has everything and it's probably true that Louis is easier to hurt than some of the others on the list. But he can hurt you right back with either hand, and I would have had to see the fellow who could have licked him the night of the second Schmeling fight.

Our Vote to Louis

If there ever was a human destroyer with his fists, I thought it was the Louis of that fight. But Tunney thinks Dempsey would have out-fought Joe and knocked him out. If I had to bet on either of 'em for the job, I'd prefer to bet on Tunney whipping The Bomber by out-thinking and out-boxing him.

Still, Gene would have had to be very lucky. Game as he was, he wouldn't have got up many times to Joe. Nobody does, although he is not a one-punch knockerout as a rule.

I once heard Tom Laird, as good a judge of fighters as I know and a fellow who is saturated with the lore of the ring, say that Jim Jeffries in his prime would have beaten any other heavyweight that ever lived. But I've never understood that the California boilermaker was a particularly good boxer. Possibly he didn't have to be.

Louis, as you know, is an excellent boxer. Not particularly fast afoot, he hits extremely fast for a big man and I never saw anything that would lead me to believe that Dempsey was more instinctive than Joe.

Furthermore, Louis seems to have a sort of sixth sense that tells him when an opponent is badly hurt and ready for the kill, and once he gets "that old feeling" he really can finish 'em off. Yes, indeedy.

Perhaps you have seen better fighters. I'm listening if you have, and it's your turn to have your say in our little round table discussion.

Norton Grinders Have Edge for Title

Off their brilliant play in the Worcester Open Tourney, the Norton Grinders will be a favorite to down the 303d Quartermasters and win the State basketball championship at Mechanics Building tomorrow afternoon.

In the secondary game, the Navy Yard A. A. will tangle with the Brooklyn Eagles in what should prove to be a game as closely contested as the major affair figures to be.

Paschal Seeks Maritime Berth

ATLANTA, March 11 (AP)—Pro football star W. A. (Billy) Paschal has applied for the U. S. Maritime service and he probably will be accepted.

Paschal, who was discharged from the Army Air Forces, later was accepted for limited Army service. Married and the father of two children, the 22-year-old backfield ace was the National Football League's leading ground gainer last season with the New York Giants.

Bartolo Lifts Crown In One-Sided Victory

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Happiest lad in New England today was 26-year-old Salvatore Bartolo of East Boston, whose eight-year-quest of the world featherweight bauble (NBA version) was consummated with a one-sided victory over defending champion Phil Terranova in a stirring 15-round bout at the Garden.

A pro-Bartolo gathering of 12,130 had seen the Noddle Islander give the most expert boxing exhibition since Johnny Indrisano, another EB boy, was in his prime 15 years ago. Our score sheet gave two rounds to the New Yorker, 10 to Bartolo and, being charitable to Terranova, called three even.

It was so one-sided that not one "boo" greeted the decision, Referee Johnny Martin, Judges Joe Blumsack and Tommy Rawson, all voting for Bartolo.

DRESSING ROOM PARTY

The new champ's dressing room was thronged after the bout. Six of his eight brothers were there—John, Mike, Pat, Ross, Joe, Charlie and Tony. Also two nephews Tony and Sonny Bartolo. It was a hilarious gathering, and Sal was most hilarious of all.

"I told Whitey Hurwitz I'd never put on the gloves again if I booted this one," he said, "and I meant it. I never had any doubt about it from the start."

He dangled the gloves which had encased his fists and was overjoyed when Terranova sent his gloves in to make the set complete.

"Boy, a champion after eight years," he beamed. "Everybody's invited to the house for a spaghetti dinner. Come on over, all of you."

He had an inch-long cut over his left eye, result of a Terranova "butt" in the ninth round. The defending champion was a rough customer, hitting on the break, using his head in the clinches until the fifth Sal hit the champ after the break. It was different after that.

HURT ONLY ONCE

"I was hurt only once," said Bartolo. "He caught me a beaut on the whiskers in the third round that numbed me. Outside of that I never was in the slightest trouble."

He wasn't. He moved in and out like Corbett, his left hand forever in Terranova's face. In the big sixth round he scored 38 times with hooks and jabs, practically without reply. So big was his lead entering the eighth that Bobby Gleason said to Terry: "He can't keep up that pace."

He had the title sewed up in the ninth, and Gleason knew it. In the 13th he begged Terry to land a kayo. It was his only hope.

THUMBED MY EYE

"Yes, he licked me," Terranova admitted as he applied ice bag to puffed right eye, "but it might have been a different story if he hadn't thumbed my eye all night long."

"Bartolo will get what's coming to him in the return bout," promised Gleason. "He might have blinded the kid. No title is worth an eye. I'll tell my boy to hit him with the ring posts next time. Everything will go that night."

"He's got one helluva nerve talking about thumbing," said Bartolo later. "I not only never thumbed him but took all his butts and late punches without squawking."

Whatever the return bout might bring, one thing seemed certain last night: that Bartolo can lick Terranova any night in the week. The latter looked like a good clubfighter but no champion. It's a good thing he never has to climb into the same ring with Willie Pep.

Gross receipts were $35,154.90; net $30,171.00 . . . Bartolo made about $3500. Terranova was guaranteed $12,500 . . . Bartolo had as wide a margin over Terranova as Jannazzo had over Zanelli last month. Imagine the furore had Terranova been declared winner last night, as was Zanelli over Jannazzo . . . Said Terranova: "He's a better fighter than me" . . . Bartolo, in the Maritime Service, reports back to Hoffman's Island, N. Y., Monday morning . . . Terranova came into Bartolo's dressing room to congratulate the new champion but didn't mention thumbing . . . "He'll be a fighting champion," promised Lou Schiro, Bartolo's pilot . . . Bartolo paced himself like a true champion. He took the 11th and 12th by wide margins, coasted through the 13th, then finished furiously . . . He had the champion missing badly most of the night.

★ ★ ★

Whistling Willie Roach, spelled "roahce" on his ring robe, knocked Larry Bolvin down in the third round of the semi-final, hurting the Providence boy so much the latter started for the wrong corner. Jack Sharkey refereed the bout and voted for Bolvin, as did Judges Eddie Curley and Jimmy Craig. The decision didn't meet with popular approval.

Freshman Picked To Win Three Events

CHICAGO, March 11 (AP)—A 17-year-old freshman ranked as the favorite to win individual honors today from among some 150 track stars from Big Ten conference schools who will compete in their annual meet.

He is Claude (Buddy) Young, who enrolled at the University of Illinois six weeks ago.

STATE HOOP ACES IN TITLE TILTS TONIGHT

By MIKE GILLOOLY

You can take it straight from Vin Cronin. Coach of Somerville High School, that his team has "not yet reached its peak."

All of which serves as a warning to Waltham, undefeated opponent of Somerville in the finals of the Tech Tourney Class A competition tonight at the Boston Garden where a near capacity crowd will be storming the gates for the crowning of two new Eastern state champions. Filling out a highly interesting double-header, Braintree and Belmont basketball babies will battle it out for the Class B bunting—the entire program getting under way at 8 p. m.

CLASS OF CARNIVAL

Somerville, thus far, has been strictly the class of the carnival. The Cronin crew has soundly trounced North Quincy and Medford in its qualifying tests—but you can take it from any court fan, Somerville can and will play much better ball than shown to date. Admittedly, there have been flashes of greatness but hardly the consistent, high-scoring play the team is capable of.

The team appeared to be coasting through the Mustangs in its semi-final. Medford, beaten twice during the regular season, was nothing further than a repetition of a league game. Somerville knew it could win, applying the pressure only when pressed.

Paced by the red-hot Tony Lavelli, a sure-fire choice for the all-Tourney team, it's hard to see how Somerville can miss winning the crown. Lavelli can chalk up two points under any condition, from any angle.

WALTHAM CONFIDENT

Coach Art Quinn of Waltham, jittery in his first tournament since the opening, felt that his team stood a great chance of continuing its winning streak to the Tech title. Victorious over Brockton and New Bedford, Waltham will be relying on the dead-eye shooting of Roy Arbuthnot to annex the crown.

Although the spotlight will be on this Somerville-Waltham clash, the Braintree-Belmont meeting will be a whale of a tussle. The aggressiveness of the Braintree bunch has tended to install the South Shore team as the favorite but then, Belmont is at its best in an uphill fight.

Welch, LaMotta Train in Hub

Jake LaMotta, the duration middleweight champion and most serious contender for Tony Zale's crown, is due here today to begin heavy training for his St. Patrick's Day battle in Boston Garden with Coleman Patrick "Coley" Welch.

Though he has beaten such great boxers as Jimmy Reeves, Jose Basora and Fritzie Zivic, the skillful LaMotta has been training more for the March 17th clash than for any other bout in his career.

LaMotta holds Welch in great respect, believing that the great outpouring of South Boston friends may inspire his aggressive Irish opponent to new heights.

From the camp near Boothbay Harbor, Me., where Welch is in secret training come reports that the New England 160-pound king is rapidly rounding into fighting pitch.

Bruins Hopes Resting on N. Y. Rangers

By BILL GRIMES

With the ice out of the Garden and the Arena and unable to book practice sessions at either the Boston Skating Club or the Providence Auditorium, the Bruins have been marking time, since they were knocked off by the Red Wings last Tuesday, anxiously watching their chances of making the Stanley Cup play-offs fade out

The Maple Leafs can put an end to the Bruins' bid for a play-off berth by tying or beating the Rangers tonight in Toronto. The Rossmen are operating on a one point margin and they'll be wiped out if the Maple Leafs are not beaten by the Blue Shirts, which isn't likely with the blue chips on the board.

But, regardless of whether they are in or out of the play-offs the Rossmen will take on Les Canadiens tomorrow night at the Garden. The Canucks will play the Red Wings tonight in Mont real and are confident of hanging up their 35th victory of the season, despite the tedious round trip to Chicago and the spirited battle they had with the Blackhawks.

If the Canucks win tonight, they will tie the Bruins all-time point record of 77 which was established during the 1929-30 season in a 44 game campaign. They will have won 35 and tied seven out of 46 games. In setting up the record, the Bruins took 38 decisions and were in only one no-decision tilt in 44 games.

Since they clinched the N.H.L. title two weeks ago tonight, when they set back the Rossmen 10 to 2, the Canucks have been bearing down as though they were in danger of losing the crown. They have beaten the Red Wings in Detroit, the Blackhawks in Chicago and taken both ends of a home and home series from the Maple Leafs.

Michigan State Plans Grid Team This Fall

CHICAGO, March 11 (INS)—Michigan State plans to return to the football wars next fall, it was revealed in Chicago at the midwinter Western Conference meetings.

Director of Athletics Ralph Young and Football Coach Charley Bachman, among the non-conference athletic officials in attendance, revealed they are attempting to schedule six games with schools using only civilian players and renew their rivalry with Michigan, Purdue and Marquette.

Trout's 4-F Ticket Aids Tiger Morale

Paul "Dizzy" Trout, 28, one of baseball's five 20-game winning pitchers last season, will be flinging the pill over the plate again this summer for the Detroit Tigers, according to the Associated Press.

Trout, who first was accepted for limited service, was rejected and reclassified 4-F by his Detroit draft board. He was turned down, he said, because his ears and eyes were below Army standards.

Another Detroit player, Infielder Joseph Perry Wood, was ordered to report for a preinduction physical examination on March 25 by his Houston, Tex., draft board.

Other diamond developments yesterday included:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

NEW YORK—Catcher Bob Collins, up from Kansas City, signed contract.

PHILADELPHIA—Rookie Bill Burgo, an outfielder, reconsidered and signed a contract calling for $3000 salary.

CHICAGO—Catcher Mike Tresh informed White Sox he will not play this year. He said he intends to either enter military service or stay on his Detroit war job.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

PHILADELPHIA — Southpaw Jack Kraus, one of the Phils' star pitchers last year, wrote the club he had been ordered by his draft board to report for induction April 8.

NEW YORK—Gus Mancuso, veteran catcher, who earlier had declined to accept $1500 salary cut, announced he had received satisfactory terms and would leave Monday for Giants' training camp at Lakewood, N. J.

BOSTON—Warren Huston, who played infield with Trenton in Interstate League last year, signed Braves' contract.

PITTSBURGH—Pitcher Hank Gornicki, who won nine and lost 13 in 1943, inducted into Army at Niagara Falls, N. Y. Big Johnny Gee, another twirler, sent in signed contract.

Lincoln Five Wins Title

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Lincoln University won the Negro intercollegiate basketball championship by beating North Carolina College, 57 to 52, at the Renaissance Casino.

BRAVES, SOX ROSTERS LIGHT FOR TRAINING

Within one short week, the Braves and the Red Sox will start their annual spring training at the Choate School and Tufts College, respectively.

Almost daily, signed contracts are received at Braves Field and Fenway Park. But, the government's demand for more manpower has reached the point where for every two accepted contracts, Pres. Bob Quinn and Gen. Mgr. Eddie Collins lose one player to the armed forces.

Yesterday, Eddie Collins received signed contracts from Eddie Lake and Ford Garrison and was highly elated over his good fortune. But, in the next mail was a letter from Mace Brown, his great relief pitcher, who is married and a father, had been drafted by his Greensboro, N. C., board, passed his physical and was in the Army.

SIGNS NEWTON TEACHER

Ford Garrison, who is wintering at Greensville, S. C., is in 1-A and wrote that he expects his call at anytime but will play ball until his number comes up.

After learning Thursday that Chet Weiczorek., the slugging outfielder drafted from the Columbus Red Birds, who has three children had been drafted and would be out of baseball for the duration, Pres. Bob Quinn announced that he had signed Warren Huston, the former Newton High and Springfield College all-around star athlete.

DECLARED FREE AGENT

Warren Huston was the property of the Phillies by virtue of some working agreement Bill Cox, the former owner of that club, had with Trenton of the Interstate League. During his investigation of Cox, Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, encountered the agreement between Trenton and the Phillies and declared Warren Huston a free agent.

After he graduated from Springfield College, Huston went with Connie Mack. From Philadelphia, he went to Atlanta and then to Syracuse. He played semi-pro ball in 1939 and 1940 at Saranac Lake and Three Rivers, Que., but in 1941 and 1942, he was in the Eastern League with Williamsport and Wilkes-Barre, after which he moved into Trenton.

Record Double Pool Set at Tropical Park

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 11 (AP)—The Orange Blossom, first stakes event of the current meeting, headed an interesting program here today. The $5000 added fixture, for 2-year-old colts and geldings, had 11 smart youngsters engaged to cover 4½ furlongs of a fast track.

A record was made early in the afternoon when the fans wagered $33,340 on the daily double, largest such pool since the track's inception in 1931.

Cananea, a $16.40 for two chance under Bobby Permane, was a front-running winner of the first race, a six-furlong claimer for 3-year-olds.

Veteran Jockey Porter Roberts was fortunate in escaping injury when his mount in the second race—Jack Reaper—apparently stumbled and went down, rolling over, but clear of Roberts. The colt galloped back and when caught, was lame.

Nibble, a $5.80 choice with Eddie Arcaro in the saddle, took the second in a photo finish with the long shot, Darby Darion. Jamoke was a close third. Nibble needed one of Arcaro's strongest rides to make the grade.

Muchy ran a remarkable race to win the third contest of a mile and 70 yards. Those who backed the $5.20 favorite gave up on their chances when the gelding was knocked back in a jam that ensued leaving the gate.

Many lengths last of the nine starters most of the trip, Muchy got through on the inside around the final turn and won by two lengths under Herb Lindberg.

Speedway, also bothered after the start, closed a big gap to be second, a length in front of Valdina Joe.

How Wild Jap Revel Ends in Death to 350

By OLEN CLEMENTS

MOMOTE AIRDROME, Los Negros Island, March 11 (AP)—Eighty-six weary cavalrymen sat at the top of a revetment. At the bottom were heaped the discolored bodies of 350 Japanese. It was one of the strangest, goriest slaughters in the war.

Drink-crazed enemy soldiers, some of them Japan's finest, had dashed and crawled up the revetment slopes, shouting, singing, then killed themselves with their own grenades.

The unorthodox charge started with a drinking bout and ended in military hara-kiri. It was hard for these Americans, men from Texas, Arizona, Pennsylvania, Georgia and other states, to understand. It was like a crazy dream.

HEARD JAPS' REVEL

It started at 2 a. m. Feb. 3. Cavalrymen were spread out on top of an airplane bunker. They had fortified their position with coconut logs.

Beneath them in the jungle, they could hear the Japs getting steamed up for the charge. They could hear the sons of Nippon drinking toasts of saki (rice wine) and beer.

When rain clouds swept in, the Japs started coming. Those among them who could speak English were singing, "Deep in the Heart of Texas."

Then they charged, madly. Some of them wore the prized dragon belt. Others were common soldiers with nothing to boost their spirits but the saki and beer.

ASTOUNDS R. I. MAN

American gunfire hit the Japs like an avalanche. They piled up at the bottom of the revetment slope. The living crawled over the dead, only to die. The crazed yelling continued. Wave after wave came on. The slaughter continued.

Japanese officers in conspicuous white uniforms dashed up and were killed or took their own lives. One after another, by sword or by grenade, the Japs killed themselves.

And so it went until 9 a. m. Then it ended. Weary, dazed cavalrymen climbed down the revetment.

Said their commanding officer, Gen. William C. Chase, Providence, R. I., "I was a trench captain in the last war, but this is the strangest thing I've ever witnessed."

Sees Vote Bill Speedily O. K'd

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—Rep. Rankin (D.) of Mississipi, predicting "overwhelming" passage by both houses of the conferees report on the soldier-vote bill, said today the measure will be taken up in the Senate Monday.
